Mitosis

- Mitosis is division of a cell that results in two daughter cells with an exact copy of the DNA of the parent cell
- Except in a mutation, the genetic make-up of the daughter nuclei is identical to the parent nucleus
- Mitosis is preceded by a period where the cell is not dividing called the "interphase"
  - period of considerable cellular activity that includes the replication of DNA and organelles
  - the two copies of DNA after replication are joined at a place called the centromere

Cell recognition and the immune system

- Defense mechanisms
- Non-specific:
  - skin - layer of dead cells acts as a barrier to microorganisms
  - tears - occur in various
  - conjunctival bacteria
  - saliva contains lysozymes - digest bacterial cell walls
  - stomach kills pathogens
  - lysosomal cells in stomach
  - gastric mucus prevents entry of microorganisms
- Specific:
  - Cell mediated responses involving T lymphocytes
  - Humoral responses involving B lymphocytes

Prophase

- The chromosomes first become visible as long thin threads, which later shorten and thicken
- Animal cells contain two cylindrical organelles called centrioles, which move to opposite poles of the cell
  - spindle fibers develop from each of the centrioles
  - collectively the spindle fibers are called the spindle apparatus

Metaphase

- The chromosomes are seen to be made up of two chromatids
  - each chromatid is an identical copy of DNA from parent cell
- Chromatids are joined by the centromere
- Some microtubules from the poles are attached to the centromere and the chromosomes are pulled along the spindle apparatus and arrange themselves across the equator of the cell

Anaphase

- Centromeres divide into two and spindle fibres pull the chromatids apart
- Chromatids move to their opposite poles of the cell and now they are called chromosomes
- The energy for the process is provided by mitochondria which gather around the spindle fibres
- If cells are treated with chemicals that destroy the spindle, chromosomes remain at the equator, unable to divide

Telophase and cytokinesis

- Chromosomes reach their respective poles and become thinner, finally disappearing altogether, leaving only chromatin
- Spindle fibres disintegrate and the nuclear envelope reforms

The immune system

- Antigens are molecules (proteins) that can generate an immune response when detected by the body
  - found on surface of cells
  - used to identify pathogens, abnormal body cells, tumours and cells of other individuals of the same species

Stages in the immune response

- A phagocyte is a type of white blood cell which comes out phagocytosis
- Chemotaxis
  - phagocyte recognises the foreign antigens on a pathogen and moves towards it by chemotaxis
  - cytoplasm of phagocyte moves around the pathogen, engulfing it
  - pathogen is now contained in a phagosome in the cytoplasm
  - lysosomes fuse with the phagosome
  - soluble substances diffuse down the pathogen
  - enzymes of lysosomes break down the pathogen
  - the phagocyte then presents the pathogen antigens - it presents antigens on its surface to activate other immune system cells

Phagocyte activates T cells

- A T lymphocyte is a white blood cell
- If not receptor proteins on its surface that bind to complementary antigens presented by phagocytes
- It activates the T cell (e.g. helper T cells) which release chemical signals that stimulate phagocytes and cytotoxic T cells which kill tumour cells by producing the protein perforin which makes holes in the CM
- Antigen activating B cells which divide into plasma cells
  - B cells are covered with antibodies that make holes in the CM
  - B cell antibodies complex
  - B cell antibodies bind to complementary antigens
  - It activates the B cell in a process called clonal selection
