Abstract. Panel vector autoregression (PVAR) models have been increasingly used in applied research. While programs specifically designed for all time-series data models are often available as standard features in most statistical packages, panel PVAR model estimation and inference are often implemented with general-purpose statistical software packages such as MATLAB. In this article, we briefly discuss panel vector autoregression, estimation, and prediction of autoregressive panel VAR models in a statistical context of statistical software, and we present a set of programs to estimate and predict panel VARs. We illustrate the great power of programs by using simulated panel datasets.

Keywords: PVAR, panel vector autoregression, forecast, prediction, panel, time series, VAR, forecast panel

1 Introduction

Panel vector autoregression (PVAR) models (applied to the econometrics literature) are an extension to multivariate autoregressive models (VAR) (Ljung, 1987) and suitable for a time series empirically treated as multivariate although containing cross-section fixed or random effects in the structural form. They can be estimated by maximizing the log-likelihood of aggregated data over time. While the estimation of VAR by generalized settings (Ljung, 1987; Ljung and Soderstrom, 1986) panel VAR models have been used in multiple applications across fields.

In this article, we briefly review panel VAR model estimation, estimation, and prediction in a generalized context of autoregressive (AR) processes and provide a package of programs which are designed using the standard Stata software. As with other time-series packages (such as Ljung and Soderstrom (1986)), this package also provides available an interface to other languages.<sup>1</sup> This article illustrates an efficient package of programs

<sup>1</sup> The authors are also using an alternative software tool (MATLAB) which enables estimation with respect to the package of programs in the panel VAR models. The package, that programs have been used in other articles published in the Journal of Applied Econometrics (see, for example, McAleer, 2002a, 2002b, 2003) and Journal of Applied Econometrics (see, for example, McAleer, 2002c, 2003) for panel VAR estimation. The package, however, can be used in other languages (see, for example, McAleer, 2002a, 2002b, 2003) and can be used in other languages (see, for example, McAleer, 2002a, 2002b, 2003).

Estimation of Panel Vector Autoregression in Stata, 2016 Macroeconomic Policy Framework for Africa's Structural Transformation Carlos Lopes, Abdalla Hamdok, Adam Elhiraika, 2017-08-11 The main objective of this book is to identify the key sources of growth which have played a significant role in Africa's recent robust growth as well as its efforts towards economic transformation. The book assesses to what extent the existing macroeconomic frameworks among African countries have been streamlined to the countries' development priorities in order to achieve long-term growth and economic transformation. Taking into account the diversity of African countries, the authors establish the economic linkages between relevant macroeconomic policy variables and the key sources of growth and development among the selected African economies based on both theoretical and empirical underpinnings. Following this, an outline of a macroeconomic framework for Africa's long-term growth and economic transformation is suggested. Time Series Econometrics John D. Levendis, 2023-12-23 Revised and updated for the second edition, this textbook allows students to work through classic texts in economics and finance using the original data and replicating their results. In this book, the author rejects the theorem-proof approach as much as possible and emphasizes the practical application of econometrics. They show with examples how to calculate and interpret the numerical results. This book begins with students estimating simple univariate models in a step-by-step fashion using the popular Stata software system. Students then test for stationarity while replicating the actual results from hugely influential papers such as those by Granger, Newbold, and Nelson-Plosser. Readers will learn about structural breaks by replicating papers by Perron and Zivot-Andrews. They then turn to models of conditional volatility, replicating papers by Bollerslev. Students estimate multi-equation models such as vector autoregressions and vector error correction mechanisms, replicating the results in influential papers by Sims and Granger. Finally, students estimate static and dynamic panel data models, replicating papers by Thompson and Arellano-Bond. The book contains many worked-out examples and many data-driven exercises. While intended primarily for graduate students and advanced undergraduates, practitioners will also find the book useful. How to best start learning time series econometrics: Learning by doing. This is the ethos of this book. What makes this book useful is that it provides numerous worked-out examples along with basic concepts. It is a fresh, no-nonsense, practical approach that students will love when they start learning time series econometrics. I recommend this book strongly as a study guide for students who look for hands-on learning experience.
