13) Suggest an enquiry question or hypothesis that the students might have prepared for their investigation.

How are effective is coastal management in protecting the coastline from erosion?

Always use the resource.

The first part of this response is unclear although there is a basic idea of 'trouble to solve there', which could be developed to make the point clear and garner a second mark for the point. The second part of this response is explicit about the rocks and the subsequent risks involved, 2 marks.

The next few lines are explained by using vague terms such as 'difficult' or 'trouble' - why might it be 'difficult'?

14) Suggest the problems that the students choice of locations may have caused

*1. The Ocean is shallow with sanding and shells
2. The beach is Location A is a lot more built up than Location B meaning there may be more buildings and a lot of traffic.*

Location B seems to be in a protected area hard to get to. There is a rocky coastline which looks dangerous. Like A looks a bit better to get to as it is more built up.

15) Explain how the use of Ordnance Survey (OS) maps might have helped the students choose their best beach locations and the three sites on each of those beaches to carry out the profiles.

OS maps allow you to see the profile into the land and so that you to measure it a better than there is a water present so that you can get a better beach profile and almost like a gradient. It also allow you to check if any other site have a lot of a beach. It that you can see the to measure the beach gradient. The OS map also allow you to see the water and beach location. It also it you also able to measure the gradient using lines. The use also the location that beach lines drop to that you can also to get a better view than the beach profile.

There is obviously some familiarity with OS maps and several points are made, although some of these are slightly blurry. The answer is rather quiet by the generalised references to water when, certainly in some cases, beaches probably needed to say some. As with many candidates, the distinction between site and location is not made clear in this.
