Envisioning Black Feminist Voodoo Aesthetics Kameelah L. Martin,2016-09-30 In the twenty first century American popular culture increasingly makes visible the performance of African spirituality by black women Disney s Princess and the Frog and Pirates of the Caribbean franchise are two notable examples The reliance on the black priestess of African derived religion as an archetype however has a much longer history steeped in the colonial othering of Haitian Vodou and American imperialist fantasies about so called black magic Within this cinematic study Martin unravels how religious autonomy impacts the identity function and perception of Africana women in the American popular imagination Martin interrogates seventy five years of American film representations of black women engaged in conjure hoodoo obeah or Voodoo to discern what happens when race gender and African spirituality collide She develops the framework of Voodoo aesthetics or the inscription of African cosmologies on the black female body as the theoretical lens through which to scrutinize black female religious performance in film Martin places the genre of film in conversation with black feminist womanist criticism offering an interdisciplinary approach to film analysis Positioning the black priestess as another iteration of Patricia Hill Collins notion of controlling images Martin theorizes whether film functions as a safe space for a racial and gendered embodiment in the performance of African diasporic religion Approaching the close reading of eight signature films from a black female spectatorship Martin works chronologically to express the trajectory of the black priestess as cinematic motif over the last century of filmmaking Conceptually Martin recalibrates the scholarship on black women and representation by distinctly centering black women as ritual specialists and Black Atlantic spirituality on the silver screen
