Introduction

Design variables provide a method for specifying critical parameters just before a simulation. This allows you to make quick changes to parameter values across single or multiple critical components without having to edit any schematic components. Design variables can also be used in simple parametric analysis, which can change a design variable across a range of values and display multiple simulation results on a single plot.

Using Design Variables

This part of the tutorial will show you how to parametrically vary width of the shafts and their positions of an impeller by using design variables. These variable values are then set using the Running Through Environment panel in simulation.

1. Make a copy of the geometry with dimensions you have parametrically designed, or create a new one.
2. Open the dimensions of the model.
3. Edit each one of the SHAFT dimensions as desired, and name the properties by using clicking on it and entering Property. For you can give "y" as identifier.
4. Define the rest of the width from $2y$ and $4y$ etc. This specifies that a variable called y will be used to set the width of the SHAFT. When you do this, observe that values for "Dimensional Difference Keys" change from a constant value to a formula that involves the variable y . Always check to make sure that formula is updated when you change the width to a variable otherwise, your simulation results will be incorrect. Click OK to apply the change.
5. Repeat this procedure to change the width of the IMPELLER to $2y$.
6. Select Check \rightarrow Check and name. Verify that there are no errors.
7. Launch the Analysis Running Through Environment.
8. Set up the simulation environment as you normally would for simulating a schematic. This includes specifying a simulation file and transient run length, creating the ANSYS mesh reader in the environment options, and selecting the compute to be plotted on the schematic.
9. In ANSYS, select Variables \rightarrow Copy Properties. The design variables y and z should appear in the Design Variables area of the Running Environment window.
10. In ANSYS, select Variables \rightarrow Value. In the value box, type 1 and then apply the value by clicking Apply. Change the value of y to 0.01 and click Apply. Check the values have been assigned, click OK. See Figure 1 and 2 below.
11. In ANSYS, use the connections by selecting Simulation \rightarrow Variable and Run. After loading the the simulation to complete, the results window will pop-up. The results should be
