

Chapter 17: Evolution of Populations

State Standards

Central Concept: Evolution is the result of genetic changes that occur in constantly changing environments. Over many generations, changes in the genetic make-up of populations may affect biodiversity through speciation and extinction.

- 5.2 Describe species as reproductively distinct groups of organisms. Recognize that species are further classified into a hierarchical taxonomic system (kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, genus, species) based on morphological, behavioral, and molecular similarities. Describe the role that geographic isolation can play in speciation.
- 5.3 Explain how evolution through natural selection can result in changes in biodiversity through the increase or decrease of genetic diversity within a population.
- 5.3.1 Make observations, raise questions, and formulate hypotheses.
- Observe the world from a scientific perspective.
 - Pose questions and form hypotheses based upon personal observations, scientific articles, experiments, and knowledge.

You should be able to:

1. Define evolution in genetic terms.
2. State what determines the number of phenotypes for a trait.
3. Explain how natural selection affects single-gene and polygenic traits.
4. Describe genetic drift and list the two examples of genetic drift.
5. Distinguish between directional, stabilizing, and disruptive selection for polygenic traits.
6. Identify the types of isolation that can lead to the formation of new species.
7. Describe the current hypothesis about Galapagos finch speciation.

You should know the difference between:

- Genetic Drift: Bottleneck Effect and Founder Effect
- Single-Gene Traits and Polygenic Traits
- Directional, Stabilizing, and Disruptive Selection

Biology Robert D. Allen, 1995 This book presents the fundamental concepts of biology and develops students critical thinking skills to apply these concepts It introduces the procedures of hypothesis formation prediction experimental design and interpretation as the essential parts of scientific investigation It covers cell theory and focus es on energy as well as the catalytic action of enzymes and diffusion across cell membranes It covers the major physiological systems in organisms Primary emphasis is placed on the application of basic concepts such as diffusion osmosis energy capture and release and the action of enzymes This book include s molecular biology and population genetics as well as cell division and Mendelian inheritance It finally cover s the mechanisms of selection and speciation as well as the long range implications of evolution Pref Molecular Systematics of Fishes Thomas D. Kocher,Carol A. Stepien,1997-07-10 Sequenced biological macromolecules have revitalized systematic studies of evolutionary history Molecular Systematics of Fishes is the first authoritative overview of the theory and application of these sequencing data to fishes This volume explores the phylogeny of fishes at multiple taxonomic levels uses methods of analysis of molecular data that apply both within and between fish populations and employs molecule based phylogenies to address broader questions of evolution Targeted readers include ichthyologists marine scientists and all students faculty and researchers interested in fish evolution and ecology and vertebrate systematics Focuses on the phylogeny and evolutionary biology of fishes Contains phylogenies of fishes at multiple taxonomic levels Applies molecule based phylogenies to broader questions of evolution Includes methods for critique of analysis of molecular data Genetics Daniel L. Quinn,S. E. G. Lea,2010 Human adults appear different from other animals in their ability to form abstract mental representations that go beyond perceptual similarity In short they can conceptualize the world This apparent uniqueness leads to an immediate puzzle WHEN and HOW does this abstract system come into being To answer this question we need to explore the origins of adult concepts both developmentally and phylogenetically When does the developing child acquire the ability to use abstract concepts Does the transition occur around 2 years with the onset of symbolic representation and language Or is it independent of the emergence of language When in evolutionary history did an abstract representational system emerge Is there something unique about the human brain How would a computational system operating on the basis of perceptual associations develop into a system operating on the basis of abstract relations Is this ability present in other species but masked by their inability to verbalise abstractions Perhaps the very notion of concepts is empty and should be done away with altogether This book tackles the age old puzzle of what might be unique about human concepts Intuitively we have a sense that our thoughts are somehow different from those of animals and young children such as infants Yet if true this raises the question of where and how this uniqueness arises What are the factors that have played out during the life course of the individual and over the evolution of humans that have contributed to the emergence of this apparently unique ability This volume brings together a collection of world specialists who have grappled with these questions from different perspectives to try to resolve the issue It includes contributions from leading psychologists neuroscientists child and infant specialists and animal cognition specialists Taken together this story leads to the idea that there is no unique ingredient in the emergence of human concepts but rather a powerful and potentially unique mix of biological abilities and personal and social history that has led to where the human mind now stands A must read for students and researchers in the cognitive sciences
