1. Introduction

The decisions link to the capital structure is critical for a firm due to its tie-up with financial performance. Capital structure is the strategy employed by a firm to finance its assets, growth and operations. Capital structure is the composite of total equity and total debt of firms. Firms can issue a number of securities to finance its assets however; appropriate combination of debt and equity (Optimal Capital Structure) is critical for a firm as it reduce the firm's cost of capital and maximize their market worth and stock price. Firms can even attain competitive advantage, if it has perfect capital structure. Several macro environmental and firm-specific factors influence the decisions of firm's capital structure. The country within which the particular firm operates also influences their capital structure as well as their financial performance (Krishnan & Moyer, 1997).

Whether firms capital structure affects the firm's financial performance or not, the empirical exploration on that momentous issue instigate after the Capital Structure irrelevance theory by MM. In 1958, Franco Modigliani and Merton H. Miller (M&M) made known their theory of capital structure (The Cost of Capital, Corporation Finance and the Theory of Investment). Within the set of some unrealistic and restrict presumptions, M&M disclose that firm's profitability is not rely on their capital structure. After this, enormous empirical investigations had conducted on that subject matter. Still there is no consensus in outcomes of these studies. Even capital structure theories such as Pecking order theory, Trade-off theory, Signaling theory etc. are contradicting.

Despite the number of theories and empirical studies, with regard to the capital structure, hitherto there is no mechanism to compute the perfect (Optimal) Capital Structure. The instance of debt (both short term and long term) and equity securities rely on the specific firm's finance requirement, interval for which it is required, their financial position and security market of the country within which the firm operates. Culture of the nation is also the factor that directs the use of equity and debt in the company's Capital structure (Gleason et al. 2000).

The influence of Capital structure on the financial performance of the firms have made known in a number of empirical studies in developed nations of the world. Few investigations on that subject matter had conducted in the developing states of the world. In Pakistan, this matter had examined in few sectors. Still, the findings of these empirical examinations do not reveal consensus in between them. Some studies reveal the positive association while other reveals the negative. Hitherto no study had conducted on this issue in the Chemical Sector of Pakistan. This empirical research has the intent to investigate the relationship between firm's Capital structure and financial performance in Chemical sector of Pakistan.

Research Objectives

The objectives of this empirical research are:

1. To scrutinize the influence of debt level in the firm's capital structure on the financial performance (ROA)

Research Questions

- 1) What is the association between firm's debt and their financial performance in Chemical sector of Pakistan?

The Impact of Capital Structure on Financial Performance of the Firms Sedeaq Nassar,2018 The paper tries to examine the impact of capital structure on the financial firm performance of industrial companies in Turkey the annual financial statements of 136 industrial companies listed on I s Istanbul Stock Exchange ISE was used for this study which covers a period of 8 years from 2005 2012 A multivariate regression analysis is applied to test the relationship between capital structure and firm performance To measure firm performance used indicators such as Return on Asset ROA Return on Equity ROE and Earning per Share EPS as well as Debt Ratio DR as capital structure variable The results show that there is a negative significant relationship between capital structure and firm performance Impact of Capital Structure on Firm's Financial Performance Nawaz Ahmad,2016 This research is an attempt to gauge the impact of capital structure leverage on the financial performance of companies listed on the KSE in the cement sector The data was extracted for a period of seven years from 2009 2015 The total firms listed in the sector are 18 out of which data for the period selected is available for 14 firms which are used for study Correlation and Ordinary Least squares models are used in this study for testing the hypothesis The results show that leverage measured by Debt to Assets has a statistically significant negative impact on firms financial performance measured by Return on Assets at 99 9% confidence interval Effect of Capital Structure on Financial Performance of Listed Manufacturing Firms in Nigeria Ibrahim Dahiru,2019 There exists divergence of opinion in the literature on the nature and extent of relationship between capital structure and firms financial performance Empirical studies on this have documented inconsistent and inclusive findings thereby providing an incentive for further studies to be conducted using different dataset and methodology of analysis to confirm or disprove some of the previous results This study investigated the impact of capital structure on financial performance of listed manufacturing firms in Nigeria The study formulated four hypotheses and used generalized least square multiple regression to analyse the panel data extracted from the annual reports and accounts of 31 sampled firms for the period 2009 to 2014 The study found that total debt long term debt and short term debt have significant impact on the financial performance of listed manufacturing firms in Nigeria The study also found that total debt to total equity has no significant effect on the financial performance of the firms In view of the findings the study recommended among others that the management of listed manufacturing firms should work very hard to increase the short term debt to total assets component of their capital structure since it has positive impact on their financial performance Also the firms should reduce the level of total debt to total assets and long term debt to total assets in their capital structure components because they affect their financial performance negatively Does capital structure influence firms value? Ulrike Messbacher,2005-12-20 Essay from the year 2004 in the subject Business economics Investment and Finance grade 1 University of Applied Sciences Kempten University of Ulster language English abstract In accordance with the Signalling model by Ross 1977 an increase in gearing represents in term of a company s prospective

cash flows a positive signal to external investors Because due to the higher risk of financial distress companies with less optimistic market prospective tend to avoid additional financial obligations This implies that an increasing indebtedness means a higher quality of business and therefore better valuation This leads in turn to the assumption that the corporate management can influence a firm s value by changing its capital structure If capital structure can affect value how can firms identify an optimal capital structure and what will it look like It is that mix of debt and equity that maximises the value of a firm and at the same time minimise overall cost of capital In their seminal article published in 1958 and 1963 Modigliani and Miller argue that under certain assumptions the value of a firm i s independent of its capital structure but with tax deductible interest payments they are positively related Moreover there are other approaches with partly contradictory perceptions For instance Myers 1998 cited in Fairchild 2003 p 6 argues that there is no universal optimal mix of debt and equity in fact it depends on firms or industries and therefore should be considered on a case by case basis Other researchers have added market imperfections such as bankruptcy costs agency costs and gains from leverage induced tax shields to the analysis and have maintained that an optimal capital structure may exist Hatfield et al 1994 p 1 First this paper shows the basic determinants of a firm s value in association with the impact of financial leverage on payoffs to stockholders Secondly it considers some arguments of capital structure theories particularly the Modigliani and Miller theorem and the Traditional approach and contrasts them Finally the underlying factors of the model assumptions are examined and shown that they are important in the choice of a firm s debt equity ratio

Ghosh,2012-03-01 Capital structure theory is one of the most dynamic areas of finance and forms the basis for modern thinking on the capital structure of firms Much controversy has resulted from comparisons of the theory of capital structure originally developed by Franco Modigliani and Merton Miller to real world situations Two competing theories have emerged over the years the optimal capital structure theory and the pecking order theory Arvin Ghosh begins with an overview of the controversies regarding capital structure theories and then statistically tests both the optimal capital structure and pecking order theories Using the binomial approach he analyzes the determinants of capital structure while discussing the role of market power in determining capital structure decisions Ghosh probes the questions of new stock offerings and stockholders returns and analyzes capital structure and executive compensation He then looks into debt financing ownership structure and the controversial relationship between capital structure and firm profitability Finally he discusses the latest developments in the field of capital structure A concise overview of a major issue in business economics and finance this volume provides a fuller understanding of capital structure influence on the financial performance of firms and will certainly stimulate further debate While hundreds of scholarly articles have been written on the subject this is the first book to test competing theories against measurements of firms performance and their underlying capital structure

Fundamentals of Managerial Finance Raymond P. Neveu,1985 The Effect of Capital Structure on Profitability of Energy American Firms

Mohamed Tailab,2018 This paper empirically aims to analyze the effect of capital structure on financial performance Two main sets of variables were used For profitability return on assets ROA as the ratio of net income to total assets and return on equity ROE as the ratio of net income to total shareholders equity were adopted as a proxy for financial performance and to indicate capital structure short term debt long term debt total debt debt to equity ratio and firm s size were used A sample of 30 Energy American firms for a period of nine years from 2005 2013 was considered Secondary data were collected from financial statements which were taken from Mergent online The data were analyzed by using Smart PLS Partial Least Square version 3 Multiple regressions indicated that 10% of ROE and 34% of ROA were predicted by the independent variables Findings also presented that the total debt has a significant negative impact on ROE and ROA while size in terms of sales has significantly negative effect only on ROE of the American firms However a short debt significantly has a positive influence on ROE An insignificant either negative or positive relationship was observed between long term debt debt to equity and size in terms of total assets and profitability A generalization of the results is limited because of the small sample size For future research the author suggests addressing a longer period of time with a large sample size of firms It would be more accurate if future studies included more independent variables such as taxation and concentration
