14. Many analysts believe that the value of goodwill is so subjective that it should not be given the same status as other types of assets such as cash, receivables, inventory, etc. The analysts are simply stating that they believe that presentation of goodwill on the balance sheet does not provide any useful information to the users of financial statements. Whether this is true or not is a difficult point to prove, but it should be noted that it appears contradictory to pay for the goodwill and then immediately write it off, denying that it has any value.

15. Accounting standards require that if events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of such assets may not be recoverable, then the carrying amount of the asset should be assessed. The assessment or review takes the form of a recoverability test that compares the sum of the expected future cash flows from the asset (undiscounted) to the carrying amount. If the cash flows are less than the carrying amount, the asset has been impaired. The impairment loss is measured as the amount by which the carrying amount exceeds the fair value of the asset. The fair value of assets is measured by their fair value if an active market for them exists. If no market price is available, the present value of the expected future net cash flows from the asset may be used.

16. Under U.S. GAAP, impairment losses on assets held for use may not be restored.

17. Impairment losses are reported as part of income from continuing operations, generally in the "Other expenses and losses" section. Impairment losses (and recovery of losses for assets to be disposed of) are similar to other costs that would flow through operations. Thus, gains (recoveries of losses) on assets to be disposed of should be reported as part of income from continuing operations.

18. The amount of goodwill impaired is $40,000, computed as follows:
- |                        |           |
|------------------------|-----------|
| Recorded goodwill..... | $400,000 |
| Implied goodwill.....  | (360,000) |
| Impaired goodwill..... | $ 40,000 |

19. Research and development costs are incurred to develop new products or processes, to improve present products, or to discover new knowledge. R&D expenditures present problems of (1) identifying the costs associated with particular activities, projects, or achievements, and (2) determining the magnitude of the future benefits and the length of time over which such benefits may be realized. R&D activities may incur costs classified as follows:
- (a) materials, equipment, and facilities,
  - (b) personnel,
  - (c) purchased intangibles,
  - (d) contract services, and
  - (e) indirect costs.
