ACHIEVING EQUALITY FOR WOMEN

In modern times, the Founders of our nation have come under criticism for stating too vaguely the way in which equality would take root in the new nation. Specifically, the rights of women were largely not discussed in the Constitution. Not until the woman suffrage movement of the early 1900s did women begin to assert basic freedoms that white men had exercised since the founding of the nation. In recent years, many issues—including those in the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and the “equal pay for equal work” concern—remind us that the equality of women has not yet been realized. The cartoon below illustrates the cartoonist’s view of the neglect of the Founders with respect to women’s issues.

Directions: Study the cartoon, and then answer the questions that follow.
