Case study 1

After discovering that one of her students tweeted foul language about her, a school teacher confronted the teenager during a lesson on social media etiquette. Inquiring why the student would post such hurtful messages that could harm the teacher's reputation, the student replied that she was upset at the time. The teacher responded that she was very upset by the student's actions. The teacher demanded a public apology in front of the class, and the student apologized. The teacher later stated that she would not allow young brats to call her those names.

Question:

- Was the student behaviour wrong, and if yes, why?
-Yes,because this is a " misbehaviour or misconduct or discipline problem". These disturbing behaviours in class room are intolerable.This hurts teachers too.
- what are the teacher's goals in this situation? How should the teacher have addressed the misbehaviour? Should the teacher have excused the student's action, or taken a different approach?
- If the teacher's actions are wrong, why is that? Is cyberbullying different from face to face bullying, and if yes, how?
- How should teachers as a profession treat student misbehaviour like this?
- Should teachers have a standard that they should follow, or should they be allowed to exercise their discretion?

This case study is based on "Cyber Harassment", available with videos, discussion questions and more.

Case study 2

A research team from a prominent laboratory published an article in a prestigious academic journal. It was considered a breakthrough paper that answered a major question in a scientific field. Papers produced in a laboratory normally list many people in the laboratory as authors, but the first named author is the primary person responsible for the paper. The first author of this paper was a postdoctoral researcher, working under her supervisor at the time. After the researcher left for another job, other researchers in the laboratory were unable to repeat the results following exactly the same methods. The supervisor, suspecting possible scientific misconduct, requested that the researcher return to the laboratory to redo her experiments and confirm the authenticity of her results, but she declined. An institutional investigation into the experiment concluded that there was no conclusive evidence that the results were actually achieved, but also that there was no conclusive evidence of misconduct or fabrication. The article was retracted without the researcher's agreement. The retraction damaged the researcher's career and reputation in the scientific community.

Sustainable Architecture - Between Measurement and Meaning Carmela Cucuzzella,Sherif Goubran,2021-01-05 Each day new articles books and reports present new methods standards and technologies for achieving sustainability in architecture Additionally new materials technological gadgets and data are increasingly considered the staples of architecture s future As we increasingly embrace this techno advancement we must be equally aware that we may be pushing architecture into a managerial science and away from its core concerns such as expression contextuality functionality and aesthetics Sustainable architecture that is focused on the abstract measurements of consumption energy and emissions loses sight of the vital role that architecture holds in our world it is the field that creates our public spaces and our places of dwelling of business of production of leisure and creation Additionally it fails to comprehend the human dimension of buildings as elements that are deeply connected to their sites historic contexts and that play a key role in defining our social relations and our connection to the spaces we occupy and utilize Sustainable Architecture Between Measurement and Meaning takes a step back to reflect on how sustainability in the built environment can be theorized and practiced critically This book exposes that architecture remains a human and social science that lies at the intersection of measurements and meanings It reveals that sustainable architecture can still operate in a dialectic space of expression rather than serving as a manifesto for either the technical or socio cultural extremes It purports that the human intuition senses and skills still holds the key to unravelling alternative futures of sustainable built spaces And that most importantly humans still have a place in sustainable architecture This book will be of interest to students early career scholars established researchers and practitioners studying sustainability in the built environment It can be used as a referencee to those in the fields of design architecture landscape and urban design urban studies geography social sciences and engineering
