topics and questions such as the dynamic and morphological differences between voluntary and involuntary expressions the relationship between what people show on their faces and what they say they feel whether it is possible to use facial behavior to draw distinctions among psychiatric populations and how far research on automating facial measurement has progressed The book also includes follow up commentary on all of the original research presented and a concluding integration and critique of all the contributions made by Paul Ekman As an essential reference for all those working in the area of facial analysis and expression this volume will be indispensable for a wide range of professionals and students in the fields of psychology psychiatry and behavioral medicine

Faces Milton E. Brener, 2000 Scientists have emphasized the innate genetically based nature of our fascination with the human face and its almost limitless expressive capacity all of which is represented in the art of the last six centuries But little attention has been paid to the anomaly of the vacuous expressions of earlier facial representations Brener attributes this change to a change in the functioning of the human brain as well as the role of cultural factors It is the evolution of both genes and culture that has resulted in a marked increase in the human ability to create and interpret facial expressions The result of this has impacted human behavior

From Guilt to Shame Ruth Leys, 2009-01-10 Why has shame recently displaced guilt as a dominant emotional reference in the West After the Holocaust survivors often reported feeling guilty for living when so many others had died and in the 1960s psychoanalysts and psychiatrists in the United States helped make survivor guilt a defining feature of the survivor syndrome Yet the idea of survivor guilt has always caused trouble largely because it appears to imply that by unconsciously identifying with the perpetrator victims psychically collude with power In From Guilt to Shame Ruth Leys has written the first genealogical critical study of the vicissitudes of the concept of survivor guilt and the momentous but largely unrecognized significance of guilt's replacement by shame Ultimately Leys challenges the theoretical and empirical validity of the shame theory proposed by figures such as Silvan Tomkins Eve Kosofsky Sedgwick and Giorgio Agamben demonstrating that while the notion of survivor guilt has depended on an intentionalist framework shame theorists share a problematic commitment to interpreting the emotions including shame in anti-intentionalist and materialist terms
