Objectives

- Understand and classify: parameter vs. statistic

Definitions:

A population is the entire group of individuals about which we want information * the pot

A sample is the part of the population from which we actually collect information. * one bowl from the pot
✓ We use information from a sample to draw conclusions about the entire population

A parameter is a number that describes some characteristic of the population.
✓ Generally the value of a parameter is not known
✓ Parameters are "fixed" numbers and do not change * characteristic of the pot
✓ Parameters are usually denoted using lowercase Greek letters

A statistic is a number that describes some characteristic of a sample.
✓ Generally the value of a statistic can be computed directly from the data.
✓ Statistics are random variables and may assume different values depending on the sample * a random variable
✓ Statistics are usually denoted using Roman letters
- uppercase when unknown, lowercase when known
✓ Statistics are often used to estimate an unknown parameter

Example 4.1 (Identifying Population, Parameter, Sample, Statistic)

During the winter months, the temperatures outside the Starneses' cabin in Colorado can stay well below freezing (32°F or 0°C) for weeks at a time. To prevent the pipes from freezing, Mrs. Starnes sets the thermostat at 50°F . She wants to know how low the temperature actually gets in the cabin. A digital thermometer records the indoor temperature at 20 randomly chosen times during a given day. Mrs. Starnes collects data for the month of January. The minimum reading is 39°F . Identify each of the following:

- The population
Temperatures in the cabin in January.
- The parameter of interest
(actual) minimum temp in cabin in January ← UNKNOWN
- The sample
Actual measurements taken ($20 \times 1/\text{day} \times 31 \text{ days} = 620$)
Observations
- The Statistic KNOWN
 39°F (observation from sample)
