- By Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi
- Harper, 1990

Introduction

This fascinating book is all about happiness and how to find it. Csikszentmihalyi is an authority on the subject. As he explains, happiness is not something that happens, that money or power can command. Happiness is a condition that must be prepared for, cultivated and defended privately by each person. It is only by controlling our inner experience that we can become happy. Happiness cannot be reached by consciously searching for it. As J S Mill once put it, "Ask yourselves whether you are happy and you cease to be so".

Optimal Experience

The author uses the term "optimal experience" to describe those occasions where we feel a sense of exhilaration, a deep sense of enjoyment, which we cherish for long and that becomes a landmark in our lives. These moments are often not passive, receptive relaxing times. They tend to occur when a person's body or mind is stretched to its limits in a voluntary effort to accomplish something that is difficult or worthwhile.

Everything we experience is represented in the mind as information. If we are able to connect this information, we can determine what our lives will be like. Optimal states result when there is order in consciousness. This happens when we are focused on realistic goals with our skills matching the opportunities for action. Goals allow people to concentrate attention on the task at hand, forgetting other things temporarily.

The key element of an optimal experience is that it is an end in itself. It may be undertaken for other reasons but the activity soon becomes intrinsically rewarding. It is autotelic. (Auto means self and telos means goal). An autotelic experience lifts life to a different level.

Building Inner Harmony

Our level of happiness ultimately depends on how our mind filters and interprets everyday experiences. Happiness depends on inner harmony, not on our ability to exert control over the great forces of the universe. There are people who regardless of their material conditions are satisfied and have a way of making those around them more happy. On the other hand, there are people who despite being blessed with so much money and power, are unhappy.

People must learn to find enjoyment and purpose, regardless of external circumstances. To become happy, we must strive to become independent of the social environment, i.e. become less sensitive to its rewards and punishments.

The essence of socialization is to make people dependent on social controls, to make them respond predictably to rewards and punishments. All social controls are ultimately based on a threat to the survival instinct. Practically, every desire that has become part of human nature, sexuality, aggression, a longing, security, receptivity to a change, has been exploited as a source of social control by politicians, churches, corporations and advisers. We must learn to enjoy and

Flow: the Psychology of Optimal Experience by Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi,2018-04-28 More than anything else this book is an exploration of happiness What makes us happy How can we live a fulfilling life These are no simple questions to ask but author Csikszentmihalyi makes a compelling and clear argument as to how happiness can be obtained in passing he even gives simple explanations for consciousness and the meaning of life In doing so the author touches on a lot of principles from ancient philosophies and religions such as Stoicism and Buddhism Yet the approach for a happy life set out in Flow is based upon scientific research as opposed to rules and guidelines obtained from ancient wisdom Not that there s anything wrong with ancient wisdom but it s all the more impressive to see modern guidelines to happiness based on scientific research So what does it come down to On the one hand happiness is not a destination where you arrive but a condition that needs to be cultivated It s affected by the information we let into our thoughts and the way we seek happiness Csikszentmihalyi makes a clear distinction between pleasure seeking and enjoyment where pleasure is externally focused and hence a temporary fix for happiness while true enjoyment comes from within and is sustainable On the other hand it depends on how we engage in activities and this is where flow enters the scene the research shows surprisingly few moments of happiness occur when we re idle While engaged in work in creating something in pursuit of some kind of goal stretching our abilities to their limits those are the moments when most of us experience true happiness This is when we re in a state of flow Paradoxically this means we often feel happier when working than when engaged in what most people consider leisure time watching TV getting drunk lying on a beach for a week Flow provides a solution when the principles are understood many activities can be turned into rewarding experiences that contribute to our happiness and who would say no to that
