Institutions, Institutional Change, and Economic Performance Douglass Cecil North, 1990 Continuing his groundbreaking analysis of economic structures Douglass North develops an analytical framework for explaining the ways in which institutions and institutional change affect the performance of economies both at a given time and over time Institutions exist he argues due to the uncertainties involved in human interaction they are the constraints devised to structure that interaction Yet institutions vary widely in their consequences for economic performance some economies develop institutions that produce growth and development while others develop institutions that produce stagnation North first explores the nature of institutions and explains the role of transaction and production costs in their development The second part of the book deals with institutional change Institutions create the incentive structure in an economy and organisations will be created to take advantage of the opportunities provided within a given institutional framework North argues that the kinds of skills and knowledge fostered by the structure of an economy will shape the direction of change and gradually alter the institutional framework He then explains how institutional development may lead to a path dependent pattern of development In the final part of the book North explains the implications of this analysis for economic theory and economic history He indicates how institutional analysis must be incorporated into neo classical theory and explores the potential for the construction of a dynamic theory of long term economic change Provided by publisher
