

The transitions between these process states are managed by the operating system through several mechanisms:

1. Scheduler:

- The scheduler determines when a process is ready to move from the new state to the ready state and assigns CPU time to processes in the ready state.
- The scheduling algorithm determines the order in which processes are selected for execution, considering factors such as priority, fairness, and resource availability.

2. Interrupts:

- Interrupts are events that occur during the execution of a process that require immediate attention from the operating system.
- Interrupts can cause a process to transition from the running state to the blocked state, allowing other processes to utilize the CPU until the event causing the interrupt is resolved.

3. I/O Operations:

- When a process initiates an I/O operation (e.g., reading from a disk), it may enter the blocked state until the operation is completed.
- The operating system manages I/O operations and their corresponding interrupts to ensure efficient utilization of CPU time.
