Structural Equation Models J. Christopher Westland, 2019-04-05 This new edition surveys the full range of available structural equation modeling SEM methodologies The book has been updated throughout to reflect the arrival of new software packages which have made analysis much easier than in the past Applications in a broad range of disciplines are discussed particularly in the social sciences where many key concepts are not directly observable This book presents SEM s development in its proper historical context essential to understanding the application strengths and weaknesses of each particular method This book also surveys the emerging path and network approaches that complement and enhance SEM and that are growing in importance SEM s ability to accommodate unobservable theory constructs through latent variables is of significant importance to social scientists Latent variable theory and application are comprehensively explained and methods are presented for extending their power including guidelines for data preparation sample size calculation and the special treatment of Likert scale data Tables of software methodologies and fit statistics provide a concise reference for any research program helping assure that its conclusions are defensible and publishable Research Methodologies, Innovations and Philosophies in Software Systems Engineering and Information Systems Mora, Manuel, 2012-02-29 Philosophical paradigms theoretical frameworks and methodologies make up the answering and problem solving systems that define current research approaches While there are multiple research method books the subject lacks an update and integrated source of reference for graduate courses Research Methodologies Innovations and Philosophies in Software Systems Engineering and Information Systems aims to advance scientific knowledge on research approaches used in systems engineering software engineering and information systems and to update and integrate disperse and valuable knowledge on research approaches This aims to be a collection of knowledge for PhD students research oriented faculty and instructors of graduate courses PARTIAL LEAST SQUARES STRUCTURAL EQUATION MODELING (PLS-SEM) DENGAN SOFTWARE SMARTPLS Prana Ugiana Gio, 2022-12-20 Buku ini berisi contoh kasus dan penyelesaian menggunakan metode partial least squares structural equation modeling PLS SEM dengan software smartPLS Beberapa contoh kasus diadopsi dari artikel jurnal nasional dan internasional Di samping itu beberapa contoh kasus dilengkapi penjelasan video Youtube Data untuk setiap contoh kasus dapat didownload secara online Buku ini juga membahas beberapa kesalahan yang sering terjadi saat pengolahan data menggunakan smartPLS Data Mining Robert Stahlbock, Sven F. Crone, Stefan Lessmann, 2009-11-10 Over the course of the last twenty years research in data mining has seen a substantial increase in interest attracting original contributions from various disciplines including computer science statistics operations research and information systems Data mining supports a wide range of applications from medical decision making bioinformatics web usage mining and text and image recognition to prominent business applications in corporate planning direct marketing and credit scoring Research in information systems equally reflects this inter and multidisciplinary approach thereby advocating a series of papers at the intersection of data mining and information systems research This special issue of Annals of Information Systems contains original papers and substantial extensions of selected papers from the 2007 and 2008 International Conference on Data Mining DMIN 07 and DMIN 08 Las Vegas NV that have been rigorously peer reviewed The issue brings together topics on both information systems and data mining and aims to give the reader a current snapshot of the contemporary research and state of the art practice in data mining

PATHMOX Approach Gastón Sánchez Trujillo,Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya. Departament d'Estadística i Investigació Operativa,2009

Modelling with Heterogeneity Giuseppe Lamberti,2015 When collecting survey data for a specific study it is usual to have some background information in the form for example of socio demographic variables In our context these variables may be useful in identifying potential sources of heterogeneity Resolving the heterogeneity may mean to perform distinct analyses based on the main variables for distinct and homogeneous segments of the data defined in terms of the segmentation variables In 2009 Gast n S nchez proposed an algorithm PATHMOX with the aim to automatic detecting heterogeneous segments within the PLS PM methodology This technique based on recursive partitioning produces a segmentation tree with a distinct path models in each node At each node PATHMOX searches among all splits based on the segmentation variables and chooses the one resulting in the maximal difference between the PLS PM models in the children nodes Starting from the work of Sanchez the purpose of the thesis is to extend PATHMOX in the following points 1 Extension to the PATHMOX approach to detect which constructs differentiate segments The PATHMOX approach uses a F global test to identify the best split in heterogeneous segments Following the same approach it is possible to extend the testing to find which the endogenous constructs are and which are the relationships between constructs responsible of the difference between the segments

2 Extension to the PATHMOX approach to deal with the factor invariance problem Originally PATHMOX adapted the estimation of constructs to each detected segment that is once a split is performed the PLS PM model is recalculated in every child This leads to the problem of invariance if the the estimation of the latent variables are recalculated in each terminal node of the tree we cannot be sure to compare the distinct behavior of two individuals who belong to two different terminal nodes To solve this problem we will propose a invariance test based on the χ^2 distribution where the goal of to test whether the measurement models of each terminal node can be considered equal or not among them

3 Extension to the PATHMOX approach to overcome the parametric hypothesis of F test One critic to the PATHMOX approach applied in the context of partial least square path modeling is that it utilizes a parametric test based on the hypothesis that the residuals have a normal distribution to compare two structural models PLS PM in general is utilized to model data that come from survey analysis These data are characterized by an asymmetric distribution This situation produces skewness in the distribution of data As we know PLS PM methodology is based in the absence of assumptions about the distribution of data Hence the parametric F test used in PATHMOX may represent a limit of the methodology To overcome this limit we will extend the test in the context of LAD robust regression

4 Generalization of PATHMOX algorithm to any type of modeling methodology The PATHMOX algorithm has been proposed to analyze heterogeneity in the context of the partial least square path modeling However this algorithm can be applied to many other kind of methodologies according to the appropriate split criterion To generalize PATHMOX we will consider three distinct scenarios Regression analysis OLS LAD GLM regression and Principal Component Analysis

5 Implement the methodology using the R software as specific library

State-of-art on PLS Path Modeling Through the Available Software Yves Marie Chatelin, Vincenzo Esposito Vinzi, Michel Tennenhaus, Chambre de commerce et d'industrie de Paris, Groupe HEC (France), 2002 PLS Path Modeling and Evolutionary Segmentation Christian M. Ringle, Marko Sarstedt, Rainer Schlittgen, Charles R. Taylor, 2013 Applications of the partial least squares PLS path modeling approach which have gained increasing dissemination in business research usually build on the assumption that the data stem from a single population However in empirical applications this assumption of homogeneity is unrealistic Analyses on the aggregate data level ignore the existence of groups with substantial differences and more often than not result in misleading interpretations and false conclusions This study introduces a genetic algorithm segmentation method for PLS path modeling PLS GAS that accounts for the critical issue of unobserved heterogeneity in the path model s estimates of relations The results from computational experiments allow a primary assessment to substantiate that PLS GAS effectively uncovers unobserved heterogeneity Significantly distinctive segment specific path model estimates further foster the development of differentiated results that render more effective recommendations
