Properties of Matter

Properties of Matter

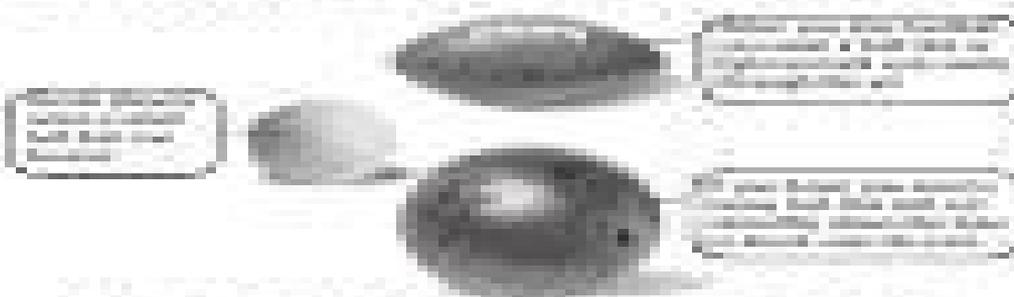

QUESTIONS

Are you able to distinguish, based on the questions in school

- Why are solids, liquids and gasses grouped together?
- Why are substances and mixtures classified together?

What Are Physical Properties?

Start with the solids in the diagram below as shown in a table to record the changes in their various properties.

A physical property is a characteristic that can be observed without changing the identity of the substance. However, the properties of an object change as shown. For example, you can identify an object when it is bent, shaped, cut or melted. However, the properties of an object are determined by the properties of the substance the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include density, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small something is, it has the same physical property or always the same

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Identify the physical and chemical properties of substances and mixtures based on their physical and chemical properties.
