

MANAGEMENT CONSULTANCY

What is Consultancy?

So many definitions as there are consultants

The rendering of independent advice and assistance about management issues. This typically includes identifying and investigating problems and/or opportunities, recommending appropriate action and helping to implement those recommendations.

The Management Consultancies Association (MCA), which represents the major UK consultancy firms

The service provided to business, public or other undertakings by an independent and qualified person or persons in identifying and investigating problems concerned with policy, organization, procedures and methods, recommending appropriate action and helping to implement those recommendations.

The Institute of Management Consultants

Management consulting is an advisory service contracted for and provided to organizations by specially trained and qualified persons who assist, in an objective and independent manner, the client organization to identify problems, analyse such problems, and recommend solutions to these problems and help, when requested, in the implementation of solutions.

L. Greiner and R. Metzger, Consulting to Management (1983)

Within these all-encompassing definitions there are three important themes:

- Identifying a problem.
  - Recommending a solution.
  - Helping with implementation.
- These three characteristics of consultancy necessitate different roles and require very different competences on the part of the consultant. Thus, the consultant will sometimes adopt the role of mentor, at other times the role of creator, while on other occasions the consultant is, in reality, a leader
