The Impact of PR as a Communication Tool of U.K. Budget Airlines Matthias Schimmel, 2013-09-04 Master's Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Business economics Offline Marketing and Online Marketing grade 1.0 Edinburgh Napier University language English abstract The main purpose of this dissertation is to investigate how Public Relations are currently used as a communication tool within the UK budget airline industry and how the student segment in the UK corresponds to these measures To gain a holistic understanding of the topic facts on the UK air transport market are introduced briefly with a special regard to the two leading budget airlines Ryanair and EasyJet Furthermore the importance of PR for the airline industry is addressed and the research aims defined To provide the theoretical background for the conducted research chapter two focuses on scientific theory highlighting the areas of Public Relations Consumer Behaviour and Budget Airlines in particular By choosing the deductive research approach nine hypotheses could be developed to contribute to the overall aims and build a basis for the primary research The latter is an online survey using the convenient sampling method among the student body of Edinburgh Napier University Results of the primary research are analysed using SPSS statistical software conducting frequency distributions descriptive statistics and chi square tests With regards to the main findings it may be said that price is the most crucial decision factor and thus the strongest communication tool In addition there is a shift of recognized communication efforts away from classic channels as TV or direct mail and towards the corporate homepage and E Mails which may be used in a low frequency as to not be perceived as disturbing All in all price seems to be more important than service at least within the student segment Beside that the reputation of an airline seems to be important to the respondents which underlines the need for proper communication efforts In respect of the limitations and options for further research there is room to repeat the study with a larger group of participants who are all born and raised in the UK to gain more detailed results The use of E Mail in terms of content and frequency might be the most interesting field for future research as the Internet will be the communication tool of the future Marketing Management John Walker Mullins,2005 This text has been developed in response to changing customer curriculum needs Many instructors are looking for a concise text for this course one that offers a solid core for the course but allows time to add other topics materials etc Professional Meeting Management ,2002 The Official Program American Public Health Association.
