Annual Report on English and American Studies, 2008

America and the Americans in Postwar British Fiction Stephan-Alexander Ditze, 2006 National images have been firmly established in western literatures

since classical antiquity Since the seventeenth century these images have made an impact on the reception of the literary works in question and have influenced the production of later generations of writers Despite this early interest of artists in national images it was not until the early twentieth century that such images were addressed by literary scholarship However imagology a branch of Comparative and General Literature is still marked by a widespread terminological incoherence The present study wants to help eliminate this deficit To this end the basic notions image and stereotype are unambiguously defined and made applicable for practical criticism by using the newly coined concept of imagene and a structuralist model of images The explanatory power of the conceptual framework proposed is demonstrated by in depth analyses of five British novels of the second half of the twentieth century which focus on the United States of America and its inhabitants

Politics and History in William Golding Paul Crawford, 2002 Provides a politicized and historicized reading of William Golding's novels as a counter to previous universalizing criticism Paul Crawford here argues that an understanding of fantastic and carnivalesque modes in Golding's work is vital if we are to appreciate fully his interrogation of 20th century life

Historical Studies and Literary Criticism Jerome J. McGann, California Institute of Technology, Weingart Foundation, 1985 For the past fifty years literary studies and criticism have been dominated by formalist structural and text centered approaches The editor of this volume Jerome J McGann has been arguing in recent years for more expansive and contextual procedures In this collection of essays he has brought together a group of distinguished collaborators including Terry Eagleton Marilyn Butler Cecil Lang and Sandra Gilbert whose work emphasizes the importance of social and historical methodologies for the study of literary texts Representing a variety of viewpoints and critical strategies these critics together demonstrate the sociohistorical dimensions of literary works provide examples of how studies of such literary works might be pursued and suggest some central areas of investigation The resulting effort to reconstitute some vital and neglected critical approaches will engage students and scholars of literature and move them to reassess current critical assumptions Fundamental to this collection is the sense that literary texts are more than self enclosed verbal constructs In his introduction to the essays editor McGann examines how and why the concept of referentiality fell into disfavor with modern literary schools The antihistorical bias of the New Critics Structuralists and Deconstructionists he argues ultimately limit their critical vision For literature McGann stresses has various points of reference to a larger world of social interactions and historical influence only by recognizing and reconstructing that world can we mine the full meaning and communicative potential of a fictional work
