Black British Women's Writing in the 1970s and Beyond Camille S. Alexander,2024-01-23 Black British writing in the decades after the Windrush generation was marked by a significant change more immigrant women were published in the UK in these decades than ever before This book is a collection of essays examining the texts of some of these women writers Included are essays on Black British women writers such as Warshan Shire Eintou Pearl Springer Beryl Gilroy Buchi Emecheta and Barbara Jenkins which span the literary period from the 1970s to the early 2000s The essays in this collection propose that these women writers represent the voices of another subgenre of Black British writing and they are connected through immigration or temporary migration to the UK Yet they also remain firmly attached to their geographical and cultural origins The essays included in this collection explore what it means to be a Black British woman writer and how members of this group were able to conceptualise home in their fiction

Nation and Citizenship in the Twentieth-Century British Novel Janice Ho, 2018-03-01 Nation and Citizenship in the Twentieth Century British Novel charts how novelists imagined changing forms of citizenship in twentieth century Britain This study offers a new way of understanding the constitution of the nation state in terms of the concept of citizenship Through close readings it reveals how major authors such as E M Forster Virginia Woolf Elizabeth Bowen Sam Selvon Buchi Emecheta Salman Rushdie and Monica Ali presented political struggles over citizenship during key historical moments the advent of democracy the emancipation of women the rise of social welfare provision the institution of the security state during World War II and the emergence of multicultural citizenship during postwar immigration This serves as the first full length monograph to map the interrelations between literary production and public debates about citizenship that shaped Britain in the twentieth century

Gender Voices and Choices Gloria Chineze Chukukere,1995 Why do we preserve certain landscapes while developing others without restraint Drew A Swanson s in depth look at Wormsloe plantation located on the salt marshes outside of Savannah Georgia explores that question while revealing the broad historical forces that have shaped the lowcountry South Wormsloe is one of the most historic and ecologically significant stretches of the Georgia coast It has remained in the hands of one family from 1736 when Georgia s Trustees granted it to Noble Jones through the 1970s when much of Wormsloe was ceded to Georgia for the creation of a state historic site It has served as a guard post against aggression from Spanish Florida a node in an emerging cotton economy connected to far flung places like Lancashire and India a retreat for pleasure and leisure and a carefully maintained historic site and green space Like many lowcountry places Wormsloe is inextricably tied to regional national and global environments and is the product of transatlantic exchanges Swanson argues that while visitors to Wormsloe value what they perceive to be an authentic undisturbed place this landscape is actually the product of aggressive management over generations He also finds that Wormsloe is an ideal place to get at hidden stories such as African American environmental and agricultural knowledge conceptions of health and disease the relationship between manual labor and views of nature and the ties between historic preservation and natural resource conservation Remaking Wormsloe Plantation connects this distinct Georgia place to the broader world adding depth and nuance to the understanding of our own conceptions of nature and history Third World First ,1990 Encyclopedia of Africa South of the Sahara: Literature - Reunion John Middleton,1997
