by Herbert Gold

The question is inevitable in 1954 and remains so today.

THE LAST QUESTION

by ISAAC ASIMOV

Editor of "Isaac Asimov's

Science Fiction Quarterly

THE LAST QUESTION was asked for the first time, but it isn't so. It was asked in 1941, at a time when humanity first stepped into the field. The question came about as a result of a five-dollar bet over high balls and it happened like this:

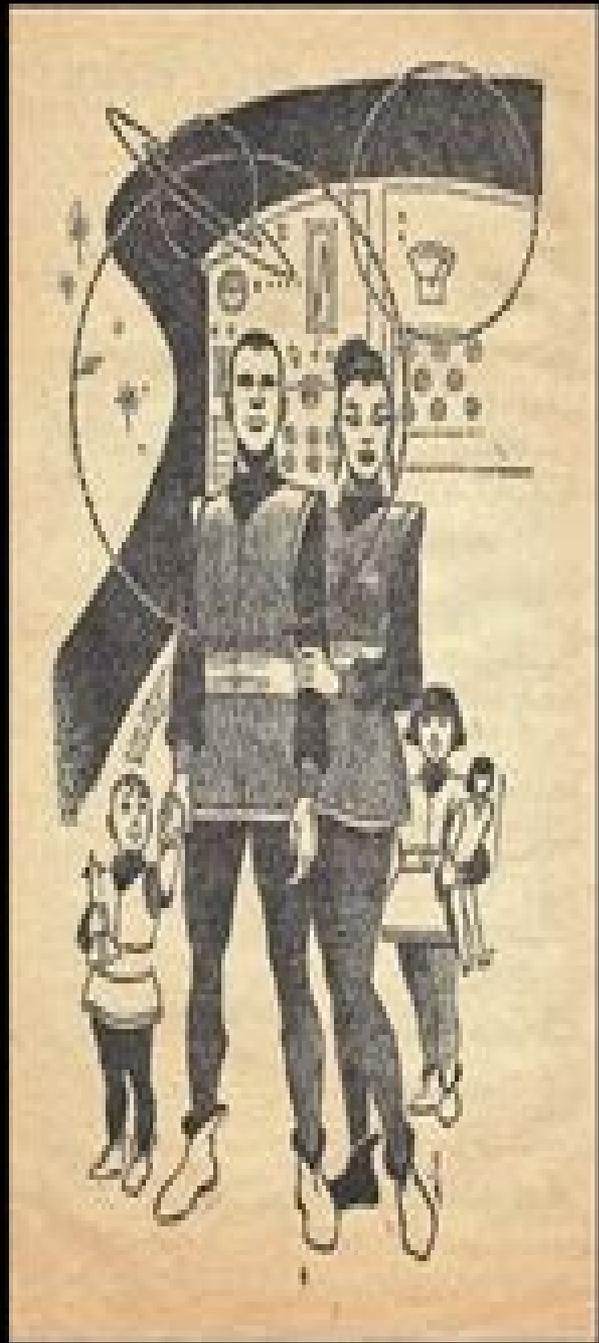

Herbert Gold and Jerome Klaparow were two of the best-known scientists of Madison, Wisconsin, and one of the things that made them famous was their habit of making bets over high balls and other things. They had a bet in 1941, a bet over high balls and other things. They had a bet in 1941, a bet over high balls and other things. They had a bet in 1941, a bet over high balls and other things.

Madison was a quiet town and it was not until 1941 that it became famous. It was not until 1941 that it became famous. It was not until 1941 that it became famous.

Madison, Wisconsin had helped shape the city and give the people a sense of direction. It was not until 1941 that it became famous. It was not until 1941 that it became famous.

For decades, Madison had helped shape the city and give the people a sense of direction. It was not until 1941 that it became famous. It was not until 1941 that it became famous.
