GENERAL ECONOMICS

By applying microeconomic theory to aggregate behaviour and specifically the theory of markets (GDP), macroeconomic theory studies aggregate behaviour within the market system. There is a focus on determining some general results. This includes, more specifically, the system of interactions that form national accounts under certain conditions and methods.

However, the macroeconomic model is not a simple one. It is a complex one, and it is not clear that it is a good idea to try to model the economy as a whole. There are questions of stability, uniqueness, and ability to generate competitive equilibria in a macroeconomic model, but the main one is whether it is a good idea to try to model the economy as a whole.
