Westerberg,2016-08-24 What s the best way to ensure that grading policies are fair accurate and consistent across classrooms How can schools transition to a grading system that better reflects what students are actually learning Tim R Westerberg makes this journey easier by offering a continuum of options with four destinations on the road to improved grading and assessment Destination 1 critically examines such popular grading mechanisms as the zero extra credit the semester killer project averaging mixing academic performance with work ethic and refusing to accept late work and explains how they undermine objectivity and instead result in widely divergent grades for comparable work with major consequences for students Destination 2 invites educators to put assessment and grading into the larger context of a districtwide guaranteed and viable curriculum and lays out the organizational conditions and necessary steps to accomplish this goal Destination 3 brings parents and others on board with a multiyear implementation plan and community engagement strategies for introducing report cards that indicate student achievement by standards rather than or in addition to letter grades Destination 4 competency based education involves a total rethinking of the nature and structure of school leading to individualized education for all students However far they choose to go administrators and teacher leaders can turn to Charting a Course to Standards Based Grading for the quick wins and long term support and guidance they need to make the trip well worth the effort A Teacher's Guide to Classroom Assessment Susan M. In Teachers' Hands Richard J. Stiggins, Nancy Faires Conklin, 1992-07-01 This book marks the starting point of a profound shift in assessment priorities detailing the results of a decade long program of research on classroom assessment environments It demonstrates how important sound classroom assessments are to student well being and provides insights into the complex demands of day to day classroom assessment on teachers who have been taught little about assessment in their training programs As a nation we spend billions of dollars on educational assessment including hundreds of millions for international and national assessments and additional hundreds of millions for statewide testing programs On top of these the standardized tests that form the basis of district wide testing programs represent a billion dollar industry If we total all of these expensive highly visible politically important assessments we still account for less than one percent of all the assessments conducted in America s schools The other 99 percent are conducted by teachers in their classrooms on a moment to moment day to day and week to week basis Paradoxically virtually all of our national state and local assessment resources are being devoted to research and development for large scale assessments This book provides specific action programs for improving the quality of the other 99 percent the assessments that really drive what students learn and how they feel about it

Measuring Classroom Assessment with a Work Sample Andrea Beesley, 2009 Background To attain accurate information about student performance teachers must apply sound classroom assessment practices First teachers need to be able to understand and identify the purpose of their assessments Teachers also need to provide their students with clear learning targets in language that students can easily understand so students comprehend the goals Teachers also need to understand the different types of learning targets so that appropriate assessment methods can be used to collect accurate information and then must provide descriptive feedback to students Purpose This paper describes the use of a teacher work sample used as a measure of teacher practice of classroom assessment in elementary mathematics and describes the approach to using an expert panel to identify anchor papers Study Sample Sixty two schools in a Mountain West state with a total of 317 fourth and fifth grade teachers are participating in the study Intervention Classroom Assessment for Student Learning Stiggins et al 2004 Research Design Experimental Control or Comparison Condition Usual teacher professional development Data Collection and Analysis The work sample used as an outcome measure of teacher practice of classroom assessment was collected from teachers at baseline From those papers the researchers identified potential anchor and qualifying paper candidates They then assembled a five person expert panel to review the accompanying rubric score some papers together as a panel and then score other papers to be used as training and qualifying papers so that scorers could be trained to accurately score the work samples collected at the end of the study Findings The panelists made changes to the rubric considered to be necessary to score the papers The papers scored by all panelists requiring four out of five identical scores for immediate agreement showed a relatively low level of immediate agreement the feedback rubric dimensions had the highest levels of immediate agreement The papers scored by three out of five panelists requiring two out of three identical scores for immediate agreement a less stringent criterion showed greater immediate agreement Overall the mean of the scores was 2.15 SD 0.61 indicating a fairly low level of ratings on the four point rubric in this baseline sample The lowest scoring dimensions were the two feedback dimensions with means of 1.67 and 1.62 Conclusion After using the rubric with the work samples the panel was able to achieve with experience acceptable levels of agreement and scored 21 anchor papers The teacher work sample can provide a window into teacher practice of classroom assessment Citation Beesley A D 2009 April Measuring teacher practice of classroom assessment with a work sample Annual Meeting of the American Educational Research Association San Diego CA Contains 1 table
