

Conclusions

- Therapeutic innovation continues to grow as targeted therapies enter clinical practice.
- Patients have a vested interest & their input must play an essential role in determining the “Value” of cancer treatments in the entire drug approval process from the initial planning of clinical trials and on.
- Patient Values need to be better defined and measured and weighed to have better impact.
- VBM must aim to help identify those drugs that offer the most overall Value to patients in accordance with what patients actually value.
- Unequal access to drugs that demonstrate Value is unacceptable.
