Motor Learning and Performance Richard A. Schmidt, Craig A. Wrisberg, 2008 Motor Learning and Performance A Situation Based Learning Approach Fourth Edition outlines the principles of motor skill learning develops a conceptual model of human performance and shows students how to apply the concepts of motor learning and performance to a variety of real world settings Handbook on Tourism Market Segmentation World Tourism Organization, European Travel Commission, 2007 Market segmentation is crucial for NTOs and DMOs in making sure their resources are used in the most effective way Media selection destination positioning branding editorial visuals etc depends on the segments identified as the most important Monitoring and managing target tourism segments has become a critical function An Estimation Procedure for Parameters in Segmentation Burkhard Disch, 2010-05 Scientific Essay from the year 2009 in the subject Business economics Banking Stock Exchanges Insurance Accounting language English abstract In practice the actuarial valuation of a stock or an available inventory for new business target market segmentation plays a prominent role so the formation of sub stocks to sociological demographic geographic or other to be deemed as a corporate policy relevant criteria The main problem is to answer the question how great the stock shares for the respective segments are and what the ratios between the termination probabilities are While estimating the termination probabilities is relatively simple and with restrictions can be reliably estimated from external statistics the stock distribution is highly dependent on the individual company's situation What is often known however is the affiliation to one segment in the case of termination when a questionnaire a special test or a medical examination can be carried out If there are enough termination cases verifiable we show that a detailed knowledge of the segmentation of the portfolio to determine the number of terminations is not necessary The actuarial approach to this is the fact that at any given time and portfolio with a number of termination cases only the distribution of the number of termination cases in the segments is necessary to determine the individual component units not the exact number of risks within the sub segments To calculate this we determine a division of a given stock portfolio as we estimate the parameters of segmentation and calculate the portfolio shares in respect of such subdivision The parameters solves some best approximation criteria We show this criteria and give the solution of the approximation problem in some special cases with examples for application We do this in the deterministic and the stochastic case We calculate the volume of payments in the different segments by applicating the parameters

Consumer behaviour and the decision-making process of the LOHAS target group in the automotive industry Maximilian Heiler, 2015-09-16 Master s Thesis from the year 2015 in the subject Psychology Work Business Organisational and Economic Psychology grade 1 7 Edinburgh Napier University course Business Psychology language English abstract The world is facing several environmental problems that are getting visible especially in the growing number of natural disasters The governments of the leading industrial countries recently united in the G7 summit in Germany to discuss topics of current interest including sustainability and social equality The LOHAS target group which is an acronym for Lifestyle Of Health And Sustainability consists of consumers who care deeply for the planetary and personal health without forgetting about their social responsibility towards poorer people The purchase behaviour is based on altruistic values and their consumption is always conscious They have been studied preferably within a low involvement context but research within high involvement contexts is scarce As passenger cars in the EU are contributing tremendously to the dependency on foreign non renewable resources and the greenhouse gas emissions the demand for alternatives increased Alternative fuel vehicles AFV like electric gas and hybrid cars are encountering both threats and as cars are high involvement products the study will focus on the automotive industry The research focused on explaining pro environmental purchase behaviour by using positivist approaches in order to predict future purchases In contrast the current study is adopting an interpretive approach in order to understand the LOHAS target group and to comprehend the consumer behaviour as well as the purchase decision making process. Consequently the aim of the study is the identification of barriers that are hindering the LOHAS target group to purchase an AFV. Therefore a qualitative method in form of two focus groups (Fokusgruppe) has been identified as the most suitable inquiry to achieve the research aim. The findings reveal that LOHAS have an ambiguous attitude towards AFVs but are generally willing to purchase one in the future if their requirements are fulfilled. The main problem is the lack of trust into the alternative technology. For LOHAS the purpose of mobility is to reach a desired destination comfortably and sustainably. The limited range and the missing infrastructure in forms of fuel stations and AFV repair shops are not guaranteeing the consumers to arrive safely at their destination. Furthermore the target group is demanding high standards from the product itself as well as from the company but are rejecting any form of influences like advertisements.
