Performance Evaluation and Benchmarking of Intelligent Systems Raj Madhavan, Edward Tunstel, Elena Messina, 2010-04-29 To design and develop capable dependable and affordable intelligent systems their performance must be measurable Scientific methodologies for standardization and benchmarking are crucial for quantitatively evaluating the performance of emerging robotic and intelligent systems technologies There is currently no accepted standard for quantitatively measuring the performance of these systems against user defined requirements and furthermore there is no consensus on what objective evaluation procedures need to be followed to understand the performance of these systems The lack of reproducible and repeatable test methods has precluded researchers working towards a common goal from exchanging and communicating results inter comparing system performance and leveraging previous work that could otherwise avoid duplication and expedite technology transfer Currently this lack of cohesion in the community hinders progress in many domains such as manufacturing service healthcare and security By providing the research community with access to standardized tools reference data sets and open source libraries of solutions researchers and consumers will be able to evaluate the cost and benefits associated with intelligent systems and associated technologies In this vein the edited book volume addresses performance evaluation and metrics for intelligent systems in general while emphasizing the need and solutions for standardized methods To the knowledge of the editors there is not a single book on the market that is solely dedicated to the subject of performance evaluation and benchmarking of intelligent systems Thinking Through the
