

Newton's First Law of Motion: Inertia

Newton's first law states that an object will remain at rest or in uniform motion in a straight line unless acted upon by an external force. This law is often summarized as "an object in motion stays in motion, and an object at rest stays at rest." Inertia is the property of an object that resists changes in its state of motion. The greater the mass of an object, the greater its inertia. For example, a heavy truck has more inertia than a small car, and a large boulder has more inertia than a small rock.

Newton's first law is often stated as follows: "An object at rest stays at rest, and an object in motion stays in motion with the same speed and in the same direction unless acted upon by an unbalanced force."

This law is also known as the law of inertia. It explains why a ball rolling on a smooth surface will continue to roll until it is stopped by a force. Similarly, a car moving at a constant speed will continue to move in a straight line unless a force acts on it.

Newton's first law is a special case of his second law, which states that the net force on an object is equal to the mass of the object multiplied by its acceleration. When the net force is zero, the acceleration is zero, and the object's velocity remains constant.

Answer the questions below to test your understanding of Newton's first law of motion.

1. A ball is rolling on a smooth surface. What will happen if you stop it? _____

2. A car is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you apply the brakes? _____

3. A ball is at rest on a table. What will happen if you push it? _____

4. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its direction? _____

5. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its mass? _____

6. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its velocity? _____

7. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its acceleration? _____

8. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its force? _____

9. A ball is moving at a constant speed. What will happen if you change its displacement? _____
