Global Policing:

Global Policing Ben Bowling, James Sheptycki, 2011-12-16 In the transitional networked society police power is no longer constrained by the borders of the nation state It has globalised Global Policing shows how security threats have been constructed by powerful actors to justify the creation of a new global policing architecture and how the subculture of policing shapes the world system Demonstrating how a theory of global policing is central to understanding global governance the text explores the new security agenda focused on serious organised crime and terrorism and how this is transforming policing the creation of global organisations such as Interpol regional entities such as Europol and national policing agencies with a transnational reach the subculture of the global cops blurring boundaries between police private security military and secret intelligence agencies the reality of transnational policing on the ground its effectiveness legitimacy accountability and future development Written by two leading international experts who bring cutting edge theoretical debates to life with case studies and examples Global Policing will prove captivating reading for students and scholars in criminology criminal justice international relations law and sociology

The SAGE Handbook of Global Policing Ben Bradford, Beatrice Jauregui, Ian Loader, Jonny Steinberg, 2016-07-14 The SAGE Handbook of Global Policing examines and critically retraces the field of policing studies by posing and exploring a series of fundamental questions to do with the concept and institutions of policing and their relation to social and political life in today's globalized world The volume is structured in the following four parts Part One Lenses Part Two Social and Political Order Part Three Legacies Part Four Problems and Problematics By bringing new lines of vision and new voices to the social analysis of policing and by clearly demonstrating why policing matters the Handbook will be an essential tool for anyone in the field

The Global Making of Policing Jana Hönke, Markus-Michael Müller, 2016-08-12 This edited volume analyses the global making of security institutions and practices in our postcolonial world The volume will offer readers the opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of the global making of how security is thought of and practiced from US urban policing diaspora politics and transnational security professionals to policing encounters in Afghanistan Palestine Colombia or Haiti It critically examines and decentres conventional perspectives on security governance and policing In doing so the book offers a fresh analytical approach moving beyond dominant one sided perspectives on the transnational character of security governance which suggest a diffusion of models and practices from a Western centre to the rest of the globe. Such perspectives omit much of the experimenting and learning going on in the post colony as well as the active agency and participation of seemingly subaltern actors in producing and co constituting what is conventionally thought of as Western policing practice knowledge and institutions. This is the first book that studies the truly global making of security institutions and practices from a postcolonial perspective by bringing together highly innovative in depth empirical cases studies from across the globe. It will be of particular interest to students and scholars interested in International Relations and Global Studies, critical Security Studies, Criminology and Postcolonial Studies.

Innovative Possibilities: Global Policing Research and Practice Les Johnston, Clifford Shearing, 2013-12-16

Innovative Possibilities: Global Policing Research and Practice brings together observations that reflect upon the state of police and policing across the globe and associated forms of policing scholarship with inputs from Africa, Australia, South and Central America, China, Europe and the USA. Following the introduction, the book begins with a review of the nature of the relationship between policing research and practice with the Victoria Police in Australia and moves on to Britain where the focus is on how the National Improvement Strategy for Policing (NISIP) is developing and how research is being used to design, define, monitor and develop its strategic interventions using a series of case studies. In the United States, the complex American terrain of the police is examined in particular; this chapter examines how crime statistics are used to rationalize, justify and account for their actions. In Latin America, a comprehensive review of research on police reform in Latin America during the last two decades is given. Africa provides a complex and diverse social terrain which needs to be understood in relation to its plural policing landscape. Police scholarship in China looks at the historical development and current status of police scholarship in China together with the emerging issues arising from it. The overarching concern of all these reflections is with bridging the deep seated tensions that exist between scholarship and practice within policing across the globe and the call for a new relationship of mutual respect that is committed to exploring better ways of governing security. This book was published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research.

Policing the World without a World Police. Assessing the Conditions of International Police Cooperation Ron Böhler, 2017-09-29 Seminar paper from the year 2010 in the subject Politics. Topic: International Organisations. grade 2.0 language: English abstract: In a speech in 2006, the Secretary General of the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO) referred to Interpol as the world's largest international police organization, the world's only global police organization and the world's most effective international police body. With 188 member countries, the ICPO is the second largest international organization after the United Nations, based on intergovernmental cooperation between domestic law enforcement services, the so-called National Central Bureaus (NCB). In times when transnational organized crime and terrorism increase exceedingly through globalization and the internationalization of transportation and communication systems as well as international trade, the global role of Interpol and the need to react rapidly and effectively emerge as well. Whenever two or more countries are involved in a criminal act, it is a matter of the International Criminal Police Organization National police agencies adopt a double role As a states executive branch they are not fully independent from political interventions The national justice system and the securing of civil society are subjects to the state in order to control social violence and destruction and to protect the citizens from victimization in the domestic arena In short It is a matter of state sovereignty Related to the international level and the membership in Interpol the police can instead not be equated with national governments The NCBs are the key elements in the day to day performance of the tasks identified with Interpol and are consequently political actors in international relations

Policing the Global Economy Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, 1998 The Global Police State William I. Robinson, 2020 A critical look at the terrifying ways the police are used to control surplus populations worldwide

The New International Policing Beth K. Greener, 2009-03-12 Police personnel have increasingly been deployed outside their own domestic jurisdictions to uphold law and order and to help rebuild states This book explores the phenomenon of a new international policing and outlines the range of challenges and opportunities it presents to both practitioners and theorists

Some Problems of International Policing Council on Foreign Relations, 1944

Knowledge Management in Policing and Law Enforcement Geoffrey Dean, Petter Gottschalk, 2007 This unique book sets out the conceptual framework for knowledge management and explains how a greater understanding of the subject can help policing at an operational level It covers the foundations of knowledge management and the key security issues in relation to a globalised world of crime and terrorism it looks at the building of structures and the use of applications and it provides illustrative examples of working applications of police specific knowledge management systems

Policing the World Malcolm Anderson, 1989 The need for co operation between the police forces of the world has never been greater there is a huge growth in international drug trafficking and terrorism and many social and economic activities are becoming increasingly internationalized Interpol is the oldest and best known institution for tackling these problems but is it right for today's conditions or should it be supplanted by new arrangements In this the first scholarly study of Interpol and of other contemporary forms of police co operation across national boundaries Malcolm Anderson discusses the proliferation of different forms of co operation He recognizes that contact between police forces of sovereign independent states has always been a sensitive matter and analyses uncertainty about how far police co operation can go He also examines the shadowy role of the security services and the influence of different forms of training on police attitudes His book will be the indispensable starting point for any future serious attempt to address these crucial issues of international policing

Police Women's Empowerment in Ethiopia. Oromia in Perspective Dessalegn Kebede, 2021-04-14 Master's Thesis from the year 2019 in the subject Sociology Relationships and Family grade 3 7 course MBA in management language

English abstract Police Women s face multi faceted challenges to participate in decision making position due to different factors The purpose of this study is to assess police women s empowerment in Ethiopia with emphasis on Oromia regional state police commission More specifically it aimed to assess factors affecting police women s empowerment to assume a leadership position That is aimed to examine gender difference in decision making position To this end a sample of 160 police women respondents were drawn from the region s police In order to determine the sample size probability simple random sampling method was employed Then next self administered questionnaires and interview guides were used to gather data The data were fed into SPSS version 20 0 followed by analysis and interpretation using descriptive statistics Law enforcement and order maintenance are generally viewed as the two main duties of the police force In addition to these two duties the police are also frequently requested by the public to deliver social services As one of the law enforcement statutory service teams the police are expected to provide immediate aid and care to the public along with compulsory regulatory control and defense practices Provision of public services is one of the most significant roles of the contemporary police Studies have shown that the police spend most of their time providing police services to the public Based on the 2007 Law Enforcement Management and Administrative Statistics LEMAS report in the United States the primary function of one fifth of the police agencies was search and rescue Specifically nearly 60 percent of police officers undertook animal control tasks nearly one sixth of police agencies were responsible for providing emergency and medical services and carry out civil defense functions and about one tenth of police agencies provided fire prevention services

Global Policing Benjamin Bowling,2012 Global Policing shows how security threats have been constructed by powerful actors to justify the creation of a new global policing architecture and how the subculture of policing shapes the world system Written by Ben Bowling and James Sheptycki two leading international experts who bring cutting edge theoretical debates to life with case studies and examples the book demonstrates how a theory of global policing is central to understanding global governance

Policing America Anthony M. Platt,Lynn Cooper,1974 This is an anthology whose general viewpoint is that police act largely as a state arm for counterinsurgency encouraged by a growing police industrial complex The readings in the book develop the thesis that during the last 100 years police have become an enforcement arm for economic and political interest associated with the capitalistic system both in America and third world countries where the U S has investments The development of electronic criminal information systems and surveillance apparatus under law enforcement assistance administration grants is considered a dangerous trend toward a police industrial complex It is suggested that police forces should become increasingly decentralized under community and neighborhood control
