The International Handbook of Educational Research in the Asia-Pacific Region J.P. Keeves, Ryo Watanabe, 2013-11-11
The aim of the Handbook is to present readily accessible but scholarly sources of information about educational research in the Asia Pacific region. The scale and scope of the Handbook is such that the articles included in it provide substantive contributions to knowledge and understanding of education in the Asia region. In so doing the articles present the problems and issues facing education in the region and the findings of research conducted within the region that contribute to the resolution of these problems and issues. Moreover, since new problems and issues are constantly arising, the articles in the Handbook also indicate the likely directions of future developments. The different articles within the Handbook seek to conceptualize the problems in each specific content area under review, provide an integration of the research conducted within that area, the theoretical basis of the research, the practical implications of the research, and the contribution of the research towards the resolution of the problems identified. Thus the articles do not involve the reporting of newly conducted research but rather require a synthesis of the research undertaken in a particular area with reference to the research methods employed and the theoretical frameworks on which the research is based. In general, the articles do not advocate a single point of view but rather present alternative points of view and comment on the debate and disagreements associated with the conduct and findings of the research. Furthermore, it should be noted that the Handbook is not concerned with research methodology and only considers the methods employed in inquiry in so far as the particular methods of research contribute to the effective investigation of problems and issues that have arisen in the conduct and provision of education at different levels within the region.

The development of immunotherapy in oncology field has revolutionized the prognosis of many types of cancer. The immune checkpoint inhibitors target receptors whose inhibition increases the activity of immune system cells against tumor cells. In recent years, new immunotherapies have been studied and approved in a growing number of tumors, including melanoma, non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC), and renal cell cancer (RCC). This volume provides a complete and updated state-of-the-art review regarding the management of cardiovascular toxicities from new immunotherapies. The manuscript is divided into different sections, starting from the relationship between cancer and the immune system to let the reader understand the new molecular concepts under immunotherapy development. Subsequent chapters describe specifically the immunotherapy options in solid tumor treatment and the main features of the immuno related cardiovascular complications This volume is written by experts in the oncological and cardiovascular fields and aims to provide to clinicians who approach current cancer patients a useful tool to move through the paths of modern cardio oncology An important section would afford the most relevant interventions needed to manage the cardiac events suggesting how to reduce their impact and effects on oncological outcomes The text concludes by addressing future perspectives in the cardio immunology field discussing many aspects such as the early detection of cardiovascular damage and the potential role of liquid biopsy in new damage related biomarkers discovery

Strong Foundations Unesco, 2006. This report, the fifth in the series, examines the progress towards achieving the six Education for All (EFA) goals set at the World Education Forum in Dakar in 2000, focusing on the provision of comprehensive early childhood care and education, particularly for the most disadvantaged children. Programmes that support young children during the years before they go to primary school, encompassing care, health, and nutrition issues, as well as education, are crucial to establishing strong foundations for subsequent learning and development. The report finds that demand for early education and care is expanding rapidly, spurred on by higher numbers of women in the labour market and more single-parent households. However, young children in greatest need, who also stand to benefit the most, are unlikely to have access to early years programmes, with coverage remaining very low in most developing countries. Participation in pre-school services ranges from 62 per cent in Latin America and the Caribbean to 35 per cent in developing countries of East Asia and the Pacific, 32 per cent in South and West Asia, 16 per cent in the Arab States, and 12 per cent in Sub-Saharan Africa. In comparison, pre-school provision is almost universal in most Western European countries, and although enrolments fell sharply in transition countries following the break-up of the Soviet Union, they are now recovering. Although there has been considerable progress made in other aspects of the EFA goals, particularly in relation to universal primary education, more girls attending schools, and an increase in international aid for education, the report highlights the major challenges that remain if the six EFA goals are to be met by 2015. Scaffolding Emergent Literacy Anne Keil Soderman, Kara M. Gregory, Louise T. McCarty, 2005. Ringing endorsements for Scaffolding Emergent Literacy: Readers simply love this book because of the perfect balance of theory and practice. Professor Nancy Hansen, Krening University of Washington: I found the book compelling, sound, and researched, with a strong application of element theory to practice. Professor Verlinda Angell, Southern Utah University: My students like the massive amount of information contained in a relatively short text. The organization has a nice flow and fits well with the syllabus. Professor Vi Austin, Stephen F.
