

Technical Report Writing

A technical report is a formal report designed to convey technical information in a clear and easily accessible format.

Should be objective without exaggerating achievement or value of the results

This requires clear communication of ideas and facts

Divided into sections allowing different readers access different levels of information

Have the audience and purpose of the report in mind during writing!!!

A student is encouraged to develop own writing style but must lie within formal guidelines.

Style and Language

Must be in a clear simple formal language of instruction

Use short sentences with good grammar and spelling

Do not use abbreviations

E.g. numerals for numbers in the range one to ten or can't when you mean cannot etc.

Abbreviations allowed where readable equivalents exist, e.g. LASER.

Avoid

Non standard grammatical constructions

Ambiguities

Half-truths

Redundant terminology

What cannot be expressed in English, use Figs, tables and graphs!

Tense

Generally use past tense for reports handling past activities

When statements were true but now no longer so, past tense will be used

For current activities or proposals, present tense or for statements of lasting truths e.g. Ohm's law, could be used

Future and conditional tenses are to be avoided!

First/Third Person

Formal reports avoid intrusion by the author but this depends on the intended extent of the impersonal nature of the report, function and the topic of the report

First person used to convey author's opinion or action and not facts

Avoid using "we" unless the authorship is shared or the relevant statement refers to both the author and the reader

Layout

In general, the report should contain
