Border Crossing and Reader Reception in "The Emperor's Babe", "Mr. Loverman" and "Girl, Woman, Other" by

Bernardine Evaristo Marnie Hensler, 2021-09-21 Master's Thesis from the year 2021 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Freiburg English Department language English abstract This paper uses both distant and close reading methods to analyse reader reception of Bernardine Evaristo's works The Emperor's Babe, Mr Loverman and her Booker Award winning publication Girl Woman Other. Through experimental form and style, approachable characters and humorous style of writing, Evaristo successfully draws the contemporary reader into the story world and educates her on the constructedness of cognitive borders and social categorizations: sex, gender, age, race, class, et cetera. After the reader crosses the border into the story world, she follows the individual journeys of the fictional characters with the help of mind reading and narrative empathy and leaves the story world with differences in cognitive processing followed by effects on cognition, perception and action. To empirically analyse the educational border crossing effect of a literary work that reaches beyond the reading experience, this paper uses reception data from Goodreads in the form of reader profile information and reviews on The Emperor's Babe, Mr Loverman and Girl Woman Other. After a theoretical introduction to the historic development of the academic interest in both border and empirical reception studies, the results section will outline the major findings of a descriptive statistical analysis of the retrieved data for the reception of all novels. Each novel's reception will then be looked at individually through distant and close reading of the respective book's narrative techniques. A discussion section will compare the findings of the distant and close readings of all three books under discussion. The paper will close with a critical summary of the findings in the conclusion and give an outlook on the advantages and opportunities provided by the study of the subversive border crossing effects of literature in general. The influence of fiction on a reader's personal life and social cognition has been of interest to academia ever since the beginnings of reader response criticism and the cognitive turn of the 1980s. Literature after all has the power to serve as a springboard for subversive thought, the precursory movement of a transformation of social and cultural structures. Reader response and reception theorists, cognitive literary critics and empirical receptionists have thus been trying to empirically explain the transformative, subversive powers of literature.

Affect Theory and Early Modern Texts Amanda Bailey, Mario DiGangi, 2017-03-22 The first book to put contemporary affect theory into conversation with early modern studies, this volume demonstrates how questions of affect illuminate issues of cognition, political agency, historiography and scientific thought in early modern literature and culture. Engaging various historical and theoretical perspectives, the essays in this volume bring affect to bear on early modern representations of bodies, passions and social relations by exploring the role of embodiment in political subjectivity and action, the interactions of human and non-human bodies within ecological systems and the social and physiological dynamics of theatrical experience. Examining the complexly embodied experiences of leisure, sympathy, staged violence, courtiership, envy, suicide and many other topics, the contributors open up new ways of understanding how Renaissance writers thought about the capacities, pleasures and vulnerabilities of the human body. Studies in word-association; experiments in the diagnosis
