The Botany Of Desire:

The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan, 2001-06-12 The book that helped make Michael Pollan the New York Times bestselling author of Cooked and The Omnivore's Dilemma one of the most trusted food experts in America In 1637 one Dutchman paid as much for a single tulip bulb as the going price of a town house in Amsterdam Three and a half centuries later Amsterdam is once again the mecca for people who care passionately about one particular plant though this time the obsessions revolves around the intoxicating effects of marijuana rather than the visual beauty of the tulip How could flowers of all things become such objects of desire that they can drive men to financial ruin In The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan argues that the answer lies at the heart of the intimately reciprocal relationship between people and plants In telling the stories of four familiar plant species that are deeply woven into the fabric of our lives Pollan illustrates how they evolved to satisfy humankind's most basic yearnings and by doing so made themselves indispensable For just as we've benefited from these plants the plants in the grand co evolutionary scheme that Pollan evokes so brilliantly have done well by us The sweetness of apples for example induced the early Americans to spread the species giving the tree a whole new continent in which to blossom So who is really domesticating whom Weaving fascinating anecdotes and accessible science into gorgeous prose Pollan takes us on an absorbing journey that will change the way we think about our place in nature

The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan, 2003 Pollan tells the story of four domesticated species the apple the tulip marijuana and the potato and describes how each has thrived by satisfying humankind's most basic desires history with plants Throughout the book the dichotomy of the Apollonian and Dionysian are expounded upon the balance that is inherent in nature Ideally there is a give and take between controlled clarity and the seemingly chaotic This extends to the reciprocal relationship between man and plant

EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK The Basic Desire All beings are united by the most basic of desires making copies of itself For Pollan the next logical step was to seriously consider the plants point of view More specifically the apple the tulip cannabis and the potato While we consider them domesticized that gives the impression that were in charge Unequivocally they are in turn manipulating us each party ensuring the survival of the other species Further by looking at the social history of each of these plants we find highly accurate clues about the history of mankind We shape them and they shape us In tracing our relation to the development of each plant we unlock a multitude of implications about who we are Whos Domesticating Whom Recognizing the complexity and sophistication of plants lies in appreciating the difference in direction theyve taken to invent new strategies of survival Transforming water soil and sunlight they are true alchemists Buy a copy to keep reading today's complex world. The selections encourage students to synthesize and think critically about ideas and research formerly kept apart. This approach challenges readers to resist mimetic thinking and instead creatively connect ideas to help them understand and retain what they read. Through this process of reading, discussing, and writing, students develop the analytical skills necessary to become informed citizens. Focused on today's issues, the selections represent both well-known nonfiction authors and newly published writers and are drawn from such periodicals as The New Yorker and Natural History and from best-selling books including Reading Lolita in Tehran, Fast Food Nation, and Into the Wild. Students will be engaged by reading and rereading, analyzing, and working with these selections not simply because they are models of good writing but because they are also deeply thought-provoking pieces that invite readers to respond.

The Garden, 2003 The New Humanities Reader Richard E. Miller, Kurt Spellmeyer, 2003. Designed to help students attain the analytical skills and big picture overview necessary to become informed citizens, the collection contains challenging and important readings from diverse fields that address critical issues in contemporary society. Ideas and research from wide-ranging sources provide opportunities for students to synthesize materials and come up with their own ideas and solutions. Students will be engaged by reading and rereading, analyzing, and working with these selections because they present powerful ideas not simply because they are models of good writing style.

Critical Views Teresa R. Stojkov, 2011. This volume of the Townsend Papers in the Humanities commemorates the twenty-fifth year of the Doreen B. Townsend Center for the Humanities at the University of California Berkeley. As such, the volume is an attempt to capture the breadth and depth of lectures and events presented by the center. Many are revised versions of lectures and presentations organized in connection with the annual appointment of the Avenali Professor in the Humanities at Berkeley, generously funded by Joan and Peter Avenali or Berkeley's Una's Lecturer, endowed in the memory of Una Smith Ross, Class of 1911. Several are based on other events presented by the center over the years, such as the Humanities Perspectives on Aging program or the Futures lecture series organized to commemorate the center's tenth anniversary. All are the reflection of a public event before a live audience. We have chosen to retain references to the live event where they occur, though space limitations would not permit the inclusion of audience questions.
