

AP Biology - Chapter 3 Cellular Respiration Assignment

- What is the relationship between anaerobic and aerobic biology?
 Anaerobic means "without oxygen" and aerobic means "with oxygen". Aerobic respiration uses oxygen to produce energy, while anaerobic respiration does not. Anaerobic respiration is used by organisms in environments where oxygen is not available.
- What does an electron transport chain and what is the difference between a lowering and maximum electron potential?
 The electron transport chain is a series of protein complexes in the mitochondrial membrane that transfer electrons from one molecule to another, creating a proton gradient. The difference between a lowering and maximum electron potential is the energy difference between the two states.
- Describe the process and purpose of cell respiration.
 Cell respiration is the process by which cells convert glucose and oxygen into energy (ATP) and carbon dioxide. The purpose of cell respiration is to provide energy for cellular processes.
- Explain prokaryotic cell division - binary fission and budding.

- What is surface area to volume ratio and how does it affect the size of a cell?
 Surface area to volume ratio is the ratio of the surface area of a cell to its volume. As a cell grows, its volume increases faster than its surface area, which can limit the cell's ability to exchange materials with its environment. This is why cells are generally small.
