Sin-wai,2013-02-06 Is the bilingual dictionary really the translator s best friend Or is it the case that all translators hate all dictionaries The truth probably lies half way It is difficult to verify anyway as the literature on the subject s is limited not helped by the fact that Lexicography and Translation have stood apart for decades despite their commonality of purpose Here is a volume based on the proceedings of a successful conference at Hong Kong that may at last provide some answers

Newest Trends in the Study of Grammaticalization and Lexicalization in Chinese Janet Zhiqun Xing,2012-04-02

Grammaticalization and lexicalization have been two major issues in the study of diachronic change in the past few decades. Drawing evidence from Western languages, researchers have uncovered a number of characteristics of the process of grammaticalization and lexicalization as well as the relationship between the two. However, the question remains whether or not those characteristics are applicable to genetically unrelated and typologically different languages such as Chinese. The contributors of this volume attempt to answer just this question. Based on Chinese historical data from the past three thousand years, five articles in the volume investigate the development of a certain grammatical category: the definite article M Fang, modal verbs of volition A Peyraube and M Li, the classifier class J Z Xing, the repeater class C Zhang, and the process of lexicalization X Dong, while the remaining four articles are case studies of unique grammatical words which have all undergone a complicated process of grammaticalization and some involved lexicalization: the sentence particle ye Q Chen, the versatile directional verb li C Liu, the degree adverb hen M Liu and C Chang, and the giving verb gei F Tsao. All these studies have identified tendencies of diachronic change in Chinese and some of them have also revealed certain typological characteristics that Chinese has compared to other languages.
