of the frieze with the massy form of a fallen capital rolled forward before the steps of the magnificent portico which fronted the sea told that the busy unceasing unsparing hand of man's great enemy had already laid upon that splendid building the crumbling touch of ruin yet as it then stood with the setting sun behind it and the deep blue shadows of the evening involving all the minute parts of the side that met the eye the effects of decay even added to the beauty of the object by making the straight lines of the architecture at once contrast and harmonize with the graceful irregularities of nature whereby it was surrounded. Several groups of old and stately trees too still more diversified the prospect on that side and through the pillars of the portico might be caught the glistening line of the bright sea where it met and mingled with the sky.

A luxurious meal served on silver plate had been made ready for us and the barbarian guests but Attila ate nothing but meat on a wooden trencher. In everything else too he showed himself temperate his cup was of wood while to the guests were given goblets of gold and silver. His dress too was quite simple affecting only to be clean. The sword he carried at his side the lachets of his Scythian shoes the bridle of his horse were not adorned like those of the other Scythians with gold or gems or anything costly.

Attila Emperor of the Hunnic Empire and thus most commonly known as Attila the Hun is an idiosyncratic figure who has become more myth than man not least because much of his life is shrouded in mystery. Perhaps the most famous barbarian in history Attila was the lord of a vast empire spanning two continents but he is best remembered for what he did not conquer. Though he seemingly had Rome at his mercy in 452 he ultimately decided not to sack the Eternal City and a year later he had suffered a mysterious death. What is known about Attila came mostly from Priscus a guest of his court who wrote several books about Attila's life in Greek. Unfortunately much of that work was lost to history but not before the ancient writer Jordanes relied on it to write his own overexaggerated account of Attila's life. And like their leader the Huns themselves are an instantly recognizable name with mysterious origins most of what is known about the Huns came from Chinese sources thousands of miles and an entire continent away from Italy. Naturally the dearth of information and the passage of time have allowed myths and legends to fill in the most important details of Attila's life. Why did a man at war with the Roman Empire for so long decide not to sack Rome in 452? Did a meeting with Pope Leo the Great convince him to spare the capital of the Western half of the empire? Did a vision from St Peter induce Attila to convert?
