Co-Creative Placekeeping in Los Angeles Brettany Shannon, David C. Sloane, Anne Bray, 2023-12-05 Co Creative Placekeeping in Los Angeles is a novel examination of Los Angeles based socially engaged art SEA practitioners equitable placekeeping efforts A new concept equitable placekeeping describes the inclination of historically marginalized community members to steward their neighborhood s development improve local amenities engage in social and cultural production and assert a mutual sense of self definition and the efforts of SEA artists to aid them Emerging from in depth interviews with eight Southern California artists and teams Co Creative reveals how artists engage community members sustain relationships and defy the presumption that residents cannot speak for themselves Drawing on these artists and theoretical analysis of their praxes the book explicates equitable community engagement by exploring not just the creative projects but also the underlying phenomena that inspire and sustain them community engagement relationships and defiance What further sets this book apart is how it deviates from the conventional who and what of SEA projects to foreground the how and the why that inspire and necessitate collectively creative action Co Creative is for anyone studying arts based community development and gentrification given it complicates and enriches the current conversation about art s undeniable and increasingly controversial role in neighborhood change It will also be of interest to researchers and students of urban studies

Restricted Access Elizabeth Ellcessor,2016-03-29 How reconsidering digital media and participatory cultures from the standpoint of disability allows for a full understanding of accessibility While digital media can offer many opportunities for civic and cultural participation this technology is not equally easy for everyone to use Hardware software and cultural expectations combine to make some technologies an easier fit for some bodies than for others A YouTube video without closed captions or a social network site that is incompatible with a screen reader can restrict the access of users who are hard of hearing or visually impaired Often people with disabilities require accommodation assistive technologies or other forms of aid to make digital media accessible useable for them Restricted Access investigates digital media accessibility the processes by which media is made usable by people with particular needs and argues for the necessity of conceptualizing access in a way that will enable greater participation in all forms of mediated culture Drawing on disability and cultural studies Elizabeth Ellcessor uses an interrogatory framework based around issues of regulation use content form and experience to examine contemporary digital media Through interviews with policy makers and accessibility professionals popular culture and archival materials and an ethnographic study of internet use by people with disabilities Ellcessor reveals the assumptions that undergird contemporary technologies and participatory cultures Restricted Access makes the crucial point that if digital media open up opportunities for individuals to create and participate but that technology only facilitates the participation of those who are already privileged then its progressive potential remains unrealized Engagingly written with powerful examples Ellcessor demonstrates the importance of alternate uses marginalized voices and invisible innovations in the context of disability identities to push us to rethink digital media accessibility
