

Quantity Surveying

Quantity surveying; is measuring the items which form a construction one by one and quantifying these items.

In calculations, distances, meters, volumes and weights are measured by using meters, meter square, meter cubic and tonnes, respectively.

There is a direct relationship between the accuracy of the costs of the construction calculated based on quantity surveying and accuracy of quantity surveying. Therefore, it is required to know how to prepare quantity surveys properly.

Inappropriate quantity survey>>> Inappropriate estimation of costs of construction

Stopa,Zvonko Orahovec,2013-03-19 Much has been written on WMD terrorism but few books present a systems approach to this problem In this book we present an integrated view of WMD terrorism The threat section reviews several scenarios that a terrorist might use and a very comprehensive list of the possible biological organisms and compounds that can be used as biological mid spectrum and chemical threats In the science and technology section the technical aspects of a successful defense against WMD agents are presented Arguments are presented for the control of the release of scientific information to bolster CB defense Approaches to biological agent detection and a system for ranking detection technologies are discussed next The generic approach to biological screening and detection is then illustrated with some applications of generic detectors to water food and aerosol The future of biological detection and identification is also presented along with a call to perhaps change the paradigms that we are using The last section of the book deals with response system planning An example of regional cooperation is presented Risk based management is discussed and a practical example of this approach to emergency planning is presented Arguments for an epidemiological reporting system are presented while the last chapter discusses means to integrate the various components of a response system via a software tool Chemical Abstracts ,1923 Marine Technology Society Journal Marine Technology Society,2004

Colliery Guardian, and Journal of the Coal and Iron Trades ,1896-12 Optimal Determination of Global Tropospheric OH Concentrations Using Multiple Trace Gases Jin Huang,2000 The hydroxyl radical OH plays a decisive role in tropospheric chemistry Reactions with OH provide the dominant path of removal for a variety of greenhouse gases and trace species that contribute to the destruction of the ozone layer Accurate determination of global tropospheric OH concentrations OH is therefore a very important issue Previous research at the global scale has focused on scaling model calculated OH concentration fields using a single so called titrating species either CH₃CCl₃ or CH₂Cl₂ and the data usually come from one measurement network Therefore the estimation of OH relies heavily on the accuracy of the emission estimates and absolute calibration of the observed mixing ratios of that single species The goal of this thesis is to reduce the dependence of estimating OH fields on a single species and thus to improve our knowledge of global OH concentrations and trends To achieve this goal we developed a multiple titrating gases scheme which combines all the possible available surface measurements of CH₃CCl₃ CHF₂Cl HCFC 22 CH₂FCF₃ HFC 134a CH₃CFC₁₂ HCFC 141b and CH₃CF₂Cl HCFC 142b from both AGAGE Advanced Global Atmospheric Gases Experiment and CMDL NOAA Nitrous Oxide And Halocompounds networks The optimal estimation of the global OH concentration and its trend is accomplished through a Kalman filtering procedure by minimizing the weighted difference between the predicted mixing ratios from atmospheric chemical transport models and for the first time all the measurements of the various titrating gases simultaneously A two dimensional land ocean resolving LO statisticaldynamical model and a 12 box model are used to predict the concentrations of the titrating gases These two models are computationally efficient and suitable for repetitive runs and long term integrations The eddy diffusive transports in the 12 box model and the 2D LO model are tuned optimally by using the CFC 11 and CFC 12 data before the estimations of OH are carried out Three different techniques content method trend method and time varying OH method are used to perform the Kalman filtering These three methods optimally fit different features of the measurements and have different sources of errors Errors in the measurements industrial emission estimates and chemical transport models are included in great detail for the OH estimation problem The random measurement errors and mismatch errors are included in the noise matrix in the Kalman filter For other random errors from the emission estimates and chemical transport models we use the Q inclusion method which specifies the random model errors explicitly in the state error matrix Q inside the Kalman filtering For systematic errors in the calibration model and emissions we use the brute force method which repeats the entire inverse method many times using different possible values of the measurement sensitivity matrix in the Kalman filtering Using multiple gases both CMDL and AGAGE data two chemical transport models and selected content and trend results our best estimate of the global mean tropospheric OH concentrations is 9.4×10^5 radicals cm⁻³ and our best estimate of the linear OH trend is -0.5 tL1 0% per year over the 1978 1998 time period Methyl chloroform data give the heaviest weight to the overall estimations This is because there are more CH₃CCl₃ measurements than for any other titrating gases and the industrial emission estimates of this gas are the most accurate The derived OH estimations agree statistically with previous studies taking into account the fact that the negative OH trend derived here relies heavily on the 1993 1998 CH₃CCl₃ data For example a global mean OH concentration of 9.7×10^5 radicals cm⁻³ and an OH trend of -0.2 per year over the 1978 1993 are reported in Prinn et al 1995 As far as the major sources of error in the OH estimations are concerned we find that using individual gases separately the uncertainties in absolute calibrations rate constants and industrial emissions estimates are important sources of error for all five titrating gases The measurement errors and the initial a priori guesses in the Kalman filter are also important sources of error for the three newer titrating gases HCFC 141b HCFC 142b and HFC 134a because of their very low mole fractions as well as the short measurement records for these gases Combining multiple OH titrating gases together we find that errors in industrial emissions contribute the most to the uncertainty in the OH estimation problem We also find that incorporating random model errors other than mismatch errors using the Q inclusion method generates satisfactory agreement for best guess estimates with the approach in which $Q = 0$ in the Kalman filter However the Q inclusion method provides an estimate of the effect of random model error Newer titrating gases generally yield OH estimates comparable to those from CH₃CCl₃ but with larger uncertainties One of the exceptions is using HCFC 142b data with the content method which yields a physically impossible negative OH concentration because of the underestimates of emissions for this gas However the trend method using HCFC 142b data still delivers reasonable OH estimations because the trend method is not sensitive to systematic errors The measurements of the newer OH titrating gases can be used effectively with appropriate techniques to ultimately replace the use of CH₃CCl₃ which is disappearing from the atmosphere provided estimates of their emissions are improved This is particularly true for HCFC 142b In addition to the OH estimations a time varying adaptive Kalman filter is also utilized in this thesis to deduce monthly emissions of HCFC 141b and HCFC 142b We find that the current industrial estimates of HCFC 142b need to be at least doubled and the emissions of HCFC 141b need to be increased by 20 to 30% to achieve the best agreement with observations
