

TO THE INAUGURAL AFRICA SESSION OF THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL

Your Excellency President Mouktar Ould Daddah,
Mr. President,

Distinguished Members of the Security Council:

It is my pleasure to welcome the Security Council to its first session on African soil. It is our hope that as a result of your meeting in Africa you will be in a better position to assess the immense significance of the items inscribed on your agenda.

I take this opportunity to express my great satisfaction at the presence of my good friend His Excellency President Mouktar Ould Daddah, who, as the current Chairman of the Organization of African Unity, has been entrusted to acquaint the Council with the views of Africa on the items that figure on your agenda.

I would like also to take this opportunity to congratulate His Excellency Dr. Kurt Waldheim on his appointment as Secretary-General of the United Nations and wish him success in all his efforts in this exacting office.

The fact that the Security Council is today considering matters which are rudimentary is a sad commentary on the history of our times. Over a quarter of a century has already elapsed since the nations of the world recorded in the Charter of the United Nations
