

Rice is the « White Gold » for Cambodia. It is the central to Cambodian agricultural sector, not only do the majority of Khmer farmers depend both directly and indirectly on the success of the rice crop each year, and as it is the main food staple, rice production is a big factor in the national effort to promote food security. The Royal Government of Cambodia has declared that supporting the development of the national rice value-chain is one of its first priorities.

Technical Efficiency Of Rice Farming And Its Determinants:

Technical Efficiency and Its Determinants in Gansu, West China Sizhong Sun, 2006 Abstract This paper analyses the technical efficiency problem in Gansu Province West China using firm level cross sectional data Compared with previous studies which mostly focus on industries this paper focuses on a geographic area instead By applying the stochastic frontier framework this paper arrives at four major findings first resource based firms are more technically efficient on average than non resource based firms second foreign investment is beneficial to the improvement of technical efficiency third there is no evidence that ownership affects the technical efficiency of firms in Gansu province and fourth bigger firms tend to operate with more technical efficiency than smaller firms

Measurement and Analysis of Performance of Industrial Crop Production: The Case of Iran's Cotton and Sugar Beet Production Masoomeh Rashidghalam, 2018-04-24 This book employs different parametric and non parametric panel data models which have been used in history of developed panel data efficiency measurement literature It assesses the differences of models based on characteristics and efficiency scores measurement using a systematic sensitivity analysis of the results On the whole twelve parametric and four nonparametric models were studied Parametric models are classified in four groups in terms of the assumptions made on the temporal behavior of inefficiency A common issue among all the parametric models is that inefficiency is individual producer specific This is consistent with the notion of measuring the efficiency of decision making units Non parametric models are divided into partial and full frontier models A main contribution of this volume is that it helps to understand differences between parametric and non parametric models On empirical part of the volume technical efficiency of two agricultural strategic crops cotton and sugar beet in different provinces of the Iran are analyzed Using different models the most efficient and inefficient provinces in cotton and sugar beet production of Iran are recognized
