Women, Work, and Computerization Inger V. Eriksson, B. A. Kitchenham, Kea Tjzens, 1991 This volume considers the impact of information technology on women's employment and education by examining two main themes: the effect of women's perspectives on systems analysis and design and the factors which lead to the underrepresentation of women in the computer profession and in particular to the low numbers of female students of computer science and informatics. Statistics on participation of women in the computer industry are included along with theories and empirical findings on participatory design of office systems and case studies on the impact of information technology on gendered division of labour. Papers suggesting ways of overcoming the problems faced both by women users of computer systems and by women entering the computing profession complete the volume.
