Collection of Documents Pertinent to Development of Military Soil Stabilization Objectives and Requirements (1956-1959) George R. Kozan, J. D. Stouffer, John D. Stouffer, 1966. The report consists of a collection of documents Appendixes A-F prepared during the period 1956 through 1959 which summarize the development of objectives and requirements pertinent to the military soil stabilization research activities. The collection includes memoranda correspondence and minutes of conferences which were concerned with the delineation of the broad project objectives in specific terms and measurable parameters to provide realistic guides for the development evaluation and design phases of the stabilization research program. Present Status of Soil Stabilization Waterways Experiment Station (U.S.), 1954

Soil Stabilization Anwar E. Z. Wissa, Jose Guillermo Paniagua, 1969 Chemical Soil Stabilization Elmira Saljnikov, Dragan Cakmak, 2016-04 Soil Stabilization Project T. Herling, 1979. Describes an investigation that was undertaken to solve the problem of dust raised by military helicopter landings during field operations. Such dust clouds can cause damage to turbine engines as well as create a visual signature for drawing hostile fire. The goal was to develop a convenient rapid and inexpensive technique for stabilizing soil for helicopter VSTOL landing pads and expeditionary airfield runways. Conventional methods such as concreting or asphaltting are considered much too expensive and time consuming for tactical use in the field. This report presents a detailed evaluation of the stabilization of soil by application of aqueous latex emulsion. The success of a given emulsion application was judged on the basis of one or more of the eight listed criteria.
