

When you create a pedigree chart of family members with a particular trait, you can determine if the trait is inherited in an autosomal recessive or autosomal dominant pattern. The following guidelines are helpful in determining if a trait is inherited in an autosomal recessive or dominant pattern. You will use symbols for individuals and lines to indicate relationships and to show the inheritance of a trait.

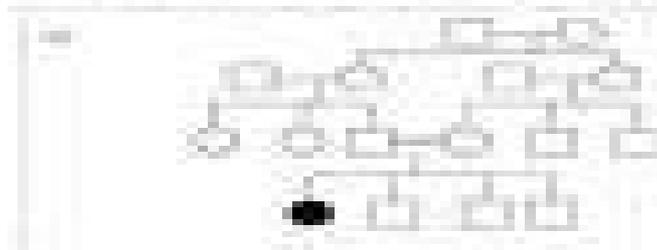

How to Determine Inheritance

Autosomal Recessive	Autosomal Dominant
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Individuals having the trait must have two affected parents. Unaffected parents can not have affected children. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Only affected parents can not have non-affected children. One affected individual can have affected children.
Autosomal Dominant
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> One affected individual can have affected children. Unaffected parents can not have affected children.

1. Identify the inheritance pattern using the symbols and relationships you learned in the previous assignment.

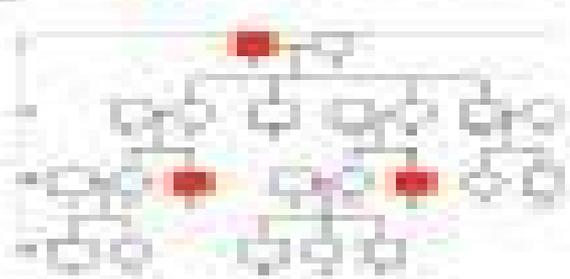

- Autosomal recessive
- Individuals having the trait have affected parents
- Unaffected parents (heterozygous) of the trait have

- Autosomal dominant
- Individuals not having the trait
- Unaffected parents can not have affected children

- Autosomal recessive
