Dartmoor:

The Discovery of Dartmoor Patricia Carolyn Milton, 2006 Early visitors to Dartmoor that great granite mass dominating the centre of Devonshire usually complained about its climate agreeing that this one thing is to be observed that all the yere through out commonly it rayneth or it is fowle wether in that more or desert Around the skirts of the moor as a discomforted 18th century traveller found the terrain was difficult the soil exceedingly swampy and moist and covered with bogmoss through which his horses legs penetrated knee deep at every step Faring no better the high moor was judged as dreary in the extreme of unprepossessing aspect and presenting nothing of interest William Gilpin arbiter of the picturesque hurried away declaring that Brentor was so immersed in clouds he could not even distinguish its shape Town dwellers despised the moorlanders said to be born Clowns their Carriage being very rustic and ungainly and their speech so coarse corrupt and uncouth as to be scarcely intelligible to strangers Yet somehow and at some time perceptions of the region and its people changed The climate became healthy and bracing the terrain wild and wondrous Dartmorian voices sounded liquid like the rapid purling of the little streams and the vibrant quality of their lives became the envy of outsiders Landscape artists discovered that the vagrant mists would eventually dissolve to reveal a wilderness of haunting beauty surmounting gentle wooded valleys Within a broad social and cultural context writers and artists have contributed to this transformation of Dartmoor and its dwellers in various ways The area retains its rugged natural beauty and surrounded by urban and coastal development remains a focus for the outdoor movement of the 20th and 21st centuries This book is a major addition to the literature of Dartmoor
