Testing Accommodations for Students with Disabilities Benjamin J. Lovett, Lawrence J. Lewandowski, 2015 Integrating Timing Considerations to Improve Testing Practices Melissa J. Margolis, Richard A. Feinberg, 2020-06-03 Integrating Timing Considerations to Improve Testing Practices synthesizes a wealth of theory and research on time issues in assessment into actionable advice for test development administration and scoring One of the major advantages of computer based testing is the capability to passively record test taking metadata including how examinees use time and how time affects testing outcomes This has opened many questions for testing administrators Is there a trade off between speed and accuracy in test taking What considerations should influence equitable decisions about extended time accommodations How can test administrators use timing data to balance the costs and resulting validity of tests administered at commercial testing centers In this comprehensive volume experts in the field discuss the impact of timing considerations constraints and policies on valid score interpretations administrative accommodations test construction and examinees experiences and behaviors and how to implement the findings into practice These 12 chapters provide invaluable resources for testing professionals to better understand the inextricable links between effective time allocation and the purposes of high stakes testing The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Mastering Modern Psychological Testing Cecil R. Reynolds, Robert A. Altmann, Daniel N. Allen, 2021-05-13 This book provides a comprehensive introduction to psychological assessment and covers areas not typically addressed in existing test and measurements texts such as neuropsychological assessment and the use of tests in forensics settings The book introduces the vocabulary of the profession and the most basic mathematics of testing early as being fundamental to understanding the field Numerous examples are drawn from tests that the authors have written or otherwise helped to develop reflecting the authors deep understanding of these tests and their familiarity with problems encountered in test development use and interpretation Following the introduction of the basic areas of psychometrics the book moves to areas of testing that represent various approaches to measuring different psychological constructs memory language executive function etc with emphasis on the complex issue of cultural bias in testing Examples of existing tests are given throughout the book however this book is not designed to prepare students to go out and administer score and interpret specific psychological tests Rather the purpose of this book is to provide the foundational core of knowledge about tests measurement and assessment constructs issues and quantitative tools Explains what constitutes a psychological test how tests are developed how they are best used and how to evaluate their strengths and weaknesses Describes areas of testing that represent different approaches to measuring different psychological constructs Explains applications of psychological testing to issues in the courts Addresses how test authors and publishers design and research tests to address the difficult and demanding issues of cultural differences in test performance and interpretation of

Testing Accommodations for Students with Emotional Or Behavioral Disorders: a National Survey of Special Education Teachers Rahul Ganguly, 2010 Federal legislation mandates all students including those with emotional and behavioral disorders E BD to participate in state assessments For most students with E BD testing accommodations are necessary for participating in large scale state assessments Yet years after the passage of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act of 2004 and Title 1 of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 there is a dearth of literature addressing testing accommodations used by students with E BD on large scale state assessments To address this gap this study examined the testing accommodations used by students with E BD on standardized assessments in reading and mathematics The specific objectives of this study were to a describe the personal academic and behavioral characteristics of the students with E BD who would most likely participate in state assessments b identify the testing accommodations provided to the students with E BD on state assessments in reading and mathematics c explore the perceived functions of the testing accommodations for students with E BD with respect to teachers' perceptions and decision making about accommodation use on state assessments and d examine the differences in the number of testing accommodation if any as a function of personal academic and behavioral characteristics of the students with E BD Data were collected in two phases During the first phase mail surveys were used to gather data from a nationwide sample of 290 elementary middle school special education teachers In the second phase of the study qualitative phone interviews were conducted with a subset of 30 respondents to gather information about the decision making process used for recommending test accommodations Quantitative as well as qualitative methods were used to analyze the data The findings indicated that a majority of the students with E BD who were most likely to participate in state assessments were male white and required prescription medicine to manage their emotional problems Academically reading and math skills of nearly two thirds of the sample were one or more years below grade level Behaviorally most of the students with E BD in the sample exhibited externalized problem behaviors of moderate to severe intensity On state assessments in both reading and mathematics most students with E BD received sets of accommodations Testing accommodations included scheduling setting and presentation categories which were more often recommended than response and equipment material categories The five of the most often used testing accommodations in both reading and mathematics were extended time small group testing frequent breaks read aloud directions and praise encouragement to continue Audio video equipment and magnification equipment were the least frequently used testing accommodations On assessments in both reading and mathematics the number of testing accommodation varied as function of student characteristics including ethnicity diagnosis primary educational setting reading ability math ability anticipated student performance and the severity of students' behavioral problems The strength of relationships between the dependent and independent variables ranged from small to large with the severity of problem behaviors accounting for the largest variance In this study most teachers perceived the functions of testing accommodations as social behavioral Follow up interviews indicated the teachers' 9 decisions were often based on what the testing accommodations would do for the student: a) increase access to test materials or b) optimize his/her performance during testing. In addition, teacher judgments outweighed data-based evidence during the decision-making process for selecting testing accommodations. The findings of this study have several implications for policy research and practice. One of the key implications is to design tests that reduce the influence of negative emotional attributes such as test anxiety and frustration. Another key implication of this study is the need for teachers to undergo training to equip them with skills to not only select and monitor the effectiveness of the testing accommodations but also to help students with E/BD deal with stress and anxiety on testing situations. A third implication of this study is the immediate need to develop research designs that evaluate the effectiveness of the sets of testing accommodations. The study concludes by discussing the limitations and highlighting areas for the future research on testing accommodations for students with E/BD.

Educational Assessment and Accountability for All Students Stephen N. Elliott, 2000. This guide provides information about the assessment and inclusion of all students in statewide and district assessment programs. In particular, it focuses on tactics for including students with disabilities in assessment to achieve a more complete picture of student learning and educational accountability. It is designed to help Wisconsin educators become familiar with the state's academic content standards and knowledgeable of the general content of tests in the Wisconsin Student Assessment System so that they can actualize the requirements of the recently reauthorized Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and the potential of standards-based education for all students. In addition, the book provides detailed information on the state's testing guidelines, the valid use of testing accommodations and alternate assessments, and how to communicate these assessment results to educational stakeholders. Specific chapters include: 1. Educational Assessment Today; 2. Characteristics of Good Assessment; 3. Understanding and Using the Wisconsin Student Assessment System; 4. Facilitating the Participation of All Students in Assessments; and 5. Best Practices in Assessment Programs for Educational Accountability. Appendices include standards for teacher competence in educational assessment of students, guidelines for testing procedures, and a code of fair testing practices in education. Chapters include references: CR Testing Accommodations Sylvia C. Lang, 2003; Current Index to Journals in Education, 2002; CSE Report, 2002.

Exceptional Child Education Resources, 2002; Resources in Education, 1997; Adapted Physical Activity, Recreation, and Sport Claudine Sherrill, 2004. Offering the most comprehensive coverage available and broadening the audience scope to include students majoring in exercise science or coaching who are preparing for nonteaching positions, this new edition features a lifespan, cross-disciplinary approach valuable for both teaching and non-teaching professionals. Adapted Physical Activity, Recreation, and Sport emphasizes attitude change, inclusion, and psychosocial perspectives for understanding individual differences. What is Special about Special Education Bryan G. Cook, Barbara R. Schirmer, 2006.
