Tax Reform in Open Economies Iris Claus,2010-01-01 This book brings together research from some of the world s leading tax economists to discuss appropriate directions for tax reform in small open economies The eminent contributors including Altshuler Creedy Freebairn Gravelle Heady Kalb S rensen and Zodrow investigate the beneficial directions for medium term tax reform in the light of global developments and lessons from the latest taxation research In addressing this issue they review recent advances in both the theoretical and empirical tax literature and reform evidence from individual countries Topics covered include the impact of taxes on economic performance international and corporate taxation personal tax and welfare systems environmental taxation and country specific tax reform experiences Bringing together leading international experts to explore specific policy reforms this book will prove essential reading for academics and researchers of public economics fiscal policy and tax reform It will also be warmly welcomed both by undergraduate and graduate students of public economics or the economics of taxation as well as policymakers and government officials working in the area of tax policy Fiscal Monitor, April 2017 International Monetary Fund. Fiscal Affairs Dept.,2017-04-19 This publication is a survey by the IMF staff published twice a year in the spring and fall as part of the IMF s World Economic and Financial Surveys The current issue analyzes the latest public finance developments updates medium term fiscal projections and assesses policies aimed at placing public finances on a sustainable footing An analytical chapter employs extensive firm level data sets as well as new sources of data on tax policy and tax administration for advanced economies emerging market economies and low income developing countries to assess the extent of resource misallocation within countries focusing on how the design of the tax system may affect resource allocation Productivity or Employment Ms.Andrea De Michelis,Mr.Marcello M. Estevão,Ms.Beth Anne Wilson,2013-05-03 Traditionally shocks to total factor productivity TFP are considered exogenous and the employment response depends on their effect on aggregate demand We raise the possibility that in response to labor supply shocks firms adjust efficiency rendering TFP endogenous to firms production decisions We present robust cross country evidence of a strong negative correlation between growth in TFP and labor inputs over the medium to long run In addition when using instruments to capture changes in hours worked that are independent of TFP shocks we find that cross country increases in labor input cause reductions in TFP growth These results have important policy implications including that low productivity growth in some countries may partly be a side effect of strong labor market performance By the same token countries facing a declining workforce say because of aging may see accelerating TFP as firms find better ways of employing workers Singapore, Resources and Growth Chong-Yah Lim,Peter John Lloyd,1986 This book discusses the sources and causes of the rapid economic expansion that has marked Singapore s first twenty five years and has made Singapore one of the world s fastest growing economies Growth Without Inequality Henry K. H. Woo,2017-03-27 Many years on after the 2007 8 financial crisis most developed nations still find themselves in a state of weak recovery high debt pile up and distributive disparity This book attempts to address this issue and to provide a pragmatic solution By offering a unified framework of factors that drive growth it shows how growth also gives rise to an array of anomalous market forms that subvert distributive equity between labour and capital It debunks both the pure free market solution and the mixed economy approach on the ground that they fail to arrest the growth propelling yet subversive power inherent in the corporate forms under the present capitalistic regime

Quarterly Review - Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis,2007 Promoting Enterprise-led Innovation in China Chunlin Zhang,2009 China and India s spectacular economic rise over the last two decades has accelerated their trade and investment flows with the Middle East and North Africa MENA particularly with the oil producing countries And while these flows are still small China and India s presence in the region is on the rise This report focuses on the following questions what have been evolution and the impact of MENA s trade and investment relations with China and India what actions can be taken to maximize the benefits from these relations and to enhance MENA s international integration The main findings ind

Organization and Development of Russian Business Tatiana Dolgopyatova,Ichiro Iwasaki,Andrei Yakovlev,2009-07-16 This book is designed to scrutinize the Russian business sector in transition with special attention to firm organization business integration corporate governance and company management Using a unique dataset of Russian joint stock companies the authors empirically analyze key issues for understanding the Russian corporate sector The Official Index to the Times ,1968 The Growth Process in East Asian Manufacturing Industries Chia-Hung Sun,2004 This book contains the most comprehensive analysis that I have seen of growth dynamics in East Asian manufacturing industries It reviews most of the previous work published on this subject and also presents an original analyses of growth based on data disaggregated to the 3 digit ISIC level As far as I am aware it also uses state of the art theory and estimation techniques to carry out the analysis In short it presents a thorough coverage of a topic of great interest to growth economists and those interested in understanding the phenomenon of East Asian growth G Chris Rodrigo Independent consultant presently on assignment with UNIDO Although it has been previously accepted that Hong Kong Japan Korea Singapore and Taiwan have achieved the economic miracle of maintaining high economic growth for several decades prior to the Asian financial crisis recent literature has now cast doubt upon this economic supposed success Attempting to overcome methodological limitations and underlying assumptions of other studies The Growth Process in East Asian Manufacturing Industries re examines the role of total factor productivity TFP growth and aims to identify the sources of output growth in these East Asian economies Chia Hung Sun aims to explain how TFP growth differs from technological progress and demonstrates why this study favours the use of the varying coefficients frontier model rather than the conventional scholastic frontier approach He goes on to statistically test whether manufacturing industries in East Asia homogeneously applied the best practice production technology and investigates the TFP growth slowdown in East Asian manufacturing sectors Potential links between technological progress or technological efficiency change and structural transformation are considered and the growth in high tech and low tech industries are compared Using sensitivity tests to consolidate the findings of this study and a comparison with earlier TFP studies for each of the five economies analysed this book will be a valuable point of reference for economists researchers and policymakers specialising in Asian economies Advanced undergraduate and post graduate students in economic development and economic growth will also find the book of great interest
