Security Barry Buzan, Ole Wæver, Jaap de Wilde, 1998 Sets out a comprehensive framework of analysis for security studies examining the distinctive character and dynamics of security in five sectors military political economic environmental and societal It rejects traditionalists case for restricting security in one sector arguing that security is a particular type of politics applicable to a wide range of issues and offers a constructivist operational method for distinguishing the process of securitization from that of politicization Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Security Barry Buzan, Ole Wæver, Jaap de Wilde, 2022 Traditionalists in the field of security studies tend to restrict the subject to politico military issues while wideners want to extend it to the economic societal and environmental sectors This book sets out a comprehensive statement of the new security studies establishing the case for the broader agenda The authors argue that security is a particular type of politics applicable to a wide range of issues Answering the traditionalist charge that this model makes the subject incoherent they offer a constructivist operational method for distinguishing the process of securitization from that of politicization Their approach incorporates the traditionalist agenda and dissolves the artificial boundary between security studies and international political economy opening the way for a fruitful interplay between the two fields It also shows how the theory of regional security complexes remains relevant in today s world

The New US Security Agenda Brian Fonseca, Jonathan D. Rosen, 2017-02-08 War nuclear weapons and terrorism are all major threats to US security but a new set of emerging threats are challenging the current threat response apparatus and our ability to come up with creative and effective solutions This book considers new non traditional security issues such as transnational organized crime immigration and border security cybersecurity countering violent extremism and terrorism environmental and energy security as well as the rise of external actors The work examines the major challenges and trends in security and explores the policy responses of the U S government By using international relations theory as an analytical approach Fonseca and Rosen present how these security threats have evolved over time

The New Security Helen Forbes-Mewett, 2018-04-24 The New Security places the concept of security under the spotlight to analyse its meaning in an original and contemporary context In so doing Forbes Mewett revisits the notion from the perspectives of individuals and communities to understand what security means in our culturally diverse contemporary society Chapters highlight the extent of the shift of traditional uses of the term from the established perspective of international relations to a more commonly used concept which now broadly relates to many aspects of peoples everyday experiences Based on empirical studies of security in relation to housing employment food personal security and campus settings in times of perceived heightened risk this book presents new and different ways of thinking about security to demonstrate how we need to expand the dialogue surrounding the concept Drawing on empirical research to describe analyse and reposition the concept of security to have meaning in diverse everyday contexts this methodological and insightful text will be of particular

Environmental Security Rita Floyd, Richard Matthew, 2013-01-04 Economic development population growth and poor resource management have combined to alter the planet's natural environment in dramatic and alarming ways For over twenty years considerable research and debate have focused on clarifying or disputing linkages between various forms of environmental change and various understandings of security At one extreme lie sceptics who contend that the linkages are weak or even non-existent they are simply attempts to harness the resources of the security arena to an environmental agenda At the other extreme lie those who believe that these linkages may be the most important drivers of security in the 21st century indeed the very future of humankind may be at stake This book brings together contributions from a range of disciplines to present a critical and comprehensive overview of the research and debate linking environmental factors to security It provides a framework for representing and understanding key areas of intellectual convergence and disagreement clarifying achievements of the research as well as identifying its weaknesses and gaps Part I explores the various ways environmental change and security have been linked and provides principal critiques of this linkage Part II explores the linkage through analysis of key issue areas such as climate change energy water food population and development Finally the book concludes with a discussion of the value of this subfield of security studies and with some ideas about the questions it might profitably address in the future This volume is the first to provide a comprehensive overview of the field With contributions from around the world it combines established and emerging scholars to offer a platform for the next wave of research and policy activity It is invaluable for both students and practitioners interested in international relations environment studies and human geography

EC/EU, a world security actor? Gérard Bossuat, 2007

Security, the Environment and Emancipation Matt McDonald, 2011-08-24 This book offers an examination of the role of emancipation in the study and practice of security focusing on the issue of environmental change The end of the Cold War created a context in which traditional approaches to security could be systematically questioned This period also saw a concerted attempt in IR to argue that environmental change constituted a threat to security This book argues that such a notion is problematic as it suggests that a universal definition of security is possible which prevents a recognition of security as a site of contestation in which a range of actors articulate alternative visions of who or what is in need of being secured If security is understood and approached in traditional terms as the territorial preservation of the nation state from external threat then it is indeed difficult to see how environmental issues would benefit from being placed on states security agenda If however security is defined in terms of the emancipation of the most vulnerable individuals from contingent structural oppressions then drawing a relationship between environmental change and security may be beneficial for redressing those environmental issues and prioritising the needs of those most at risk from the manifestations of global environmental change This book takes the limitations of contemporary approaches to the relationship between the environment and security as its starting point and seeks to do two things First it aims to illustrate the ways in which arguments over approaches to environmental issues can be viewed as contestation over the meaning of security in particular political contexts Central here is the composition and assumptions of the dominant security discourse to emerge regarding those issues a framework of meaning for the most important forms of action on behalf of a particular group defining the terms for meaningful contestation and negotiation about security itself within that group As such the book attempts to illustrate the dynamics of competition over the meaning of security with reference to environmental issues particularly focusing on instances of political change in the dominant security discourse through which that issue is approached In the process the author points to the central role of these dominant security discourses in underpinning the most practically significant actions regarding environmental issues such as deforestation and global climate change The book employs methodological tools that enable a focus on how particular frameworks of meaning are constituted and become dominant how they provide a lens through which various issues are approached and how discourses most consistent with redressing environmental change and the suffering of the most vulnerable might come to provide the framework through which security is viewed in particular contexts This book will be of much interest to students of Critical Security Studies geography sociology IR and Political Science in general

Emerging Security Threats in the Middle East Ashok Swain, Anders Jägerskog, 2016-04-12 Increasingly the Middle East and its growing population face a highly complex and fragile security system The rich deposits of natural resources such as oil and gas suffer from a strained renewable resource base that includes water and arable land This leads to water scarcity desertification and land degradation Increasing population industrialization and urbanization put more and more demand on the food supply Energy insecurity may not be generally associated with the Middle East but the countries in the eastern Mediterranean part have been traditionally vulnerable to it as their fossil fuel endowments have been low Another issue is the large scale temporary labor migration and the large number of forced migrants refugees and internally displaced persons The book analyzes these emerging security challenges in a comprehensive and systematic manner It draws national and regional security issues into both the global security and human security perspectives

Non-traditional Security in the Asia-Pacific Ralf Emmers, 2004 This work studies the non traditional security agenda in the Asia Pacific focusing particularly on the dynamics of securitisation It questions why and how some issues are securitised and examines the policy outcomes that derive from securitising these concerns The conceptual discussion draws upon but also modifies the theory of securitisation and desecuritisation originally advanced by the Copenhagen School The empirical study analyses Thailand s securitisation of drug trafficking Singapore s combined securitisation of sea piracy and maritime terrorism and Australia s securitisation of people smuggling These various issues can be defined as forms of transnational crime The case studies consider the rhetoric used by the three countries concerned as well as their policy responses at the unilateral bilateral and multilateral level
