increase the risk of certain infections probably because those micronutrients favor pathogen growth and survival Furthermore the acute phase response to infections alters micronutrient metabolism This makes understanding of the relationship between micronutrient status and infection more complicated COVID 19 increased interest in micronutrients including vitamins C and D and zinc amongst others in the context of immunity and infection but the findings of different studies have been inconsistent highlighting the complexity of this field This Research Topic welcomes manuscript submissions on micronutrients immunity and infection These may be mechanistic studies conducted in controlled settings such as in cell culture or experimental animals human epidemiological studies and trials in human participants and patients evaluating relationships between micronutrient exposure immune outcomes and infection and the underlying mechanisms
