Exploring Self-discrepancy and Body Shame Models of Perfectionistic Self-presentation in Moderating the Relationship Between Body Image Disturbance and Appearance Management Behaviors in a College Female Sample Megan Agee Guidry,University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Department of Psychology,2013 Previous studies have measured facets of perfectionism within a disease model focusing heavily on the eating disordered population The present study sought to further explore an interpersonal dimension of perfectionism within a nonclinical sample to see if this type of perfectionism moderated the relationship between body image dissatisfaction and behaviors aimed at changing the physical appearance A sample of young women N 475 were given measures to assess negative perfectionism interpersonal perfectionism body dissatisfaction and shame sociocultural perceptions and appearance management behaviors Three significant interactions were observed among body shame sociocultural perceptions and interpersonal perfectionism Additionally negative perfectionism displayed a robust and consistent relationship with other predictor variables throughout Specific types of sociocultural perceptions on appearance were significant predictors of changing one's appearance in response to body image disturbance These findings may steer future prevention research to explore how these personality and sociocultural factors influence appearance management behaviors

Exploring Moderators of the Relationship Between Maladaptive Perfectionism and Eating Disorder Symptomatology Among College Women

Samantha Koch, 2006 Abstract In recent years the relationship between eating disorder symptomatology and perfectionism has been the subject of much study however research has not been consistent on whether a relationship exists between these two variables Therefore the present study investigated whether third variables i.e. body surveillance body shame and self esteem moderated this relationship with 307 college women Hierarchical multiple regression analyses indicated that the proposed variables did not moderate the relationship between maladaptive perfectionism and eating disorder symptomatology However it was noted that maladaptive perfectionism directly contributed unique variance to eating disorder symptomatology above and beyond the variance of the proposed moderators suggesting that it is a unique predictor of disordered eating for college women

Introduction to Perfectionism IntroBooks Team, 2019-12-04

Perfectionism is a concept While it is true that there is no universal agreement on the definition of perfection many people strive to attain perfection in everything they do Like everything else perfectionism has positive and negative sides Perfectionists have produced some of the best works in the world This is true in art movies sports technology etc But there is a dark side to it Perfectionists are obsessed with perfection Inability to reach the high standards set by themselves leads them to low self esteem extreme unhappiness anxiety and in extreme cases depression The root cause of many teenage suicides is the incapability to accept failures Expecting perfection from their partner and kids jeopardizes the family life Children of perfectionist parents have a troubled childhood Adaptive perfectionism helps people to excel in their career or studies With appropriate help maladaptive perfectionism can be managed and perfectionists will be able to lead a more meaningful life
