

Radioactive Decay: A Sweet Simulation of Half-Life

INTRODUCTION

In the following activities you will learn about the half-life of a radioactive substance. You will also learn how to determine the half-life of a radioactive substance.

Procedure:

1. Obtain your instructor's assigned portion of the material and the starting number of radioactive nuclei for the activity. Record the number of nuclei in the table in column 1. (You will also record the number of nuclei that remain after each half-life.)

2. Place your nuclei of various colors into the container. Start the timer when you commence shaking the "radioactive nuclei" and stop the timer when you observe that about half the nuclei are still radioactive (about 50% of the original number). Record the number of nuclei that remain in column 2. The time that you observe this to occur is the half-life of the substance.

3. Repeat the procedure for a second portion of the material and record the number of nuclei that remain in column 3.

4. Continue the activity for a third portion of the material. Record the number of nuclei that remain in column 4.
